R. H. Gray Given Wellsville Award

The 11th annual Byron D. Beacom Award was presented Richard Homer Gray, president of the 1961 graduating class, at commencement exercises Monday night at Wellsville High School. A capacity crowd attended.

Gray, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Gray, 1603 Chester Ave., also was a member of the basketball squad. The award, given in honor of the late Byron D. Beacom, was presented by Earl Bake, Board of Education president.

This year, the award will be presented in two parts. In the past, the $500 cash award was made during the recipient's freshman year at college.

The committee this year determined that $250 will be given when the student registers for the freshman year and $250 when he registers for the sophomore year. To be eligible, the applicant must have a four-year grade average putting him in the top 25 per cent of the class; must show individual character and background and must show a determination to continue his education in his chosen field.

Applicants must present a brief biographical sketch of themselves and tell what field they plan to enter.

The award first was given in 1951. The money is from the income from stocks and bonds left by Mr. Beacom. Selection is made by an anonymous committee.

The 139 seniors were presented with their diplomas by Bake after being announced by William Menough, high school principal.

Keith Tipton, valedictorian, and David Brookman, salutatorian, were the speakers. The general theme was "The Meaning of Law."

The high school band played the processional and recessional. Supt. S. E. Daw presided. The Rev. Bruce Davis gave the invocation and benediction.

'Their Battles Done' Nation's War Dead Honored In Annual Memorial Tribute

Their bugles are silent. Their battles are done. They rest today in the bivouac of the dead. But they are remembered — and honored — for the torch of liberty which they passed on to a nation. "The right," Woodrow Wilson once said, "is more precious than peace."

It is for that conviction that they perished, 1,128,393 of them, in eight major wars fought by the United States, and it is for their sacrifice that America pays special tribute today.

The occasion is Memorial Day. And in the green-carpeted cemeteries across the land, wreaths will be placed on the graves of heroes.

Yet, in a sense, "we cannot hallow this ground," Abraham Lincoln said at Gettysburg. "The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract."

The words and deeds of that conflict, and others, will be recalled in ceremonies, speeches, prayers, and parades, as the country salutes its war dead. And the haunting notes of taps will sound their loss: "Lest we forget."

In the National Cemetery at Arlington, Va., soldiers of the 3rd Infantry's First Battle Group will place American flags on all of the 109,000 graves there.

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, will represent President Kennedy in placing the presidential wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

President Kennedy said Memorial Day is "almost a religious holiday in its dedication to the sacrifices" of those who gave their lives for their country.

It was a group of women in Columbus, Miss., that in 1863 started the Memorial Day custom — by scattering flowers on the graves both of Southern and Union soldiers.

"I will garland them with my roses," said Sue Adams, who started another early observance in Jackson, Miss., in 1865. Gradually, the idea spread throughout the nation.

At the Cathedral of the Pines, Ridge, N.H., floral tributes from President Kennedy and from all 50 state governors will be placed on the "Altar of the Nation."

The altar has been designated by Congress as a national memorial to all American dead since colonial times.

In that first war, 4,435 died — "for life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness," as the Declaration of Independence put it. But the toll mounted, as new struggles arose for the old ideal.

Salsberry Sentenced For City Assault Case

Robert Salsberry, 35, of 208 W. 7th St. Monday was sentenced to a 15-year term at the Ohio Penitentiary by Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp at Lisbon on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon filed as a result of a struggle over a gun in the Travelers Hotel lobby in May 1960. However, Judge Sharp continued Salsberry's $2,500 bond and granted a stay of execution of the sentence pending an appeal to the 7th District Court of Appeals.

Salsberry was found guilty by a jury Feb. 17, but sentencing was deferred after he requested probation. The judge sentenced him yesterday after rejecting his request for probation. Salsberry was charged in connection with a gunshot wound and other injuries suffered by Albert Barnes, a night clerk at the hotel.

Surge Waited In Traffic As Holiday Ends

Forecaster Repeats Promise Of Sunny And Cool Weather

District law enforcement agencies brace themselves for a strong surge in traffic expected late this afternoon and tonight as thousands head homeward after the first warm weather holiday of the year.

And a comparatively warm holiday it should be, the weatherman promised. Today should be sunny, but cool, with a high temperature range of 62 to 69 degrees, he said. Tonight will be fair and not so cool, he added.

So, enjoying a respite from downright cold and wet weather that has gripped the district for weeks, picnickers are expected to crowd district parks today. A few may even venture into swimming pools, although the water promises to be chilly.

Highlight of the holiday will be a series of programs and parades.

Discharged Officer Asks Reinstatement

The Municipal Civil Service Commission will hear William E. Nott's appeal from an order removing him from the police department for "inefficiency" Thursday at 10 a.m.

In announcing the hearing, the commission said it will be conducted in Council chambers on the second floor of City Hall.

The commission originally was expected to set the date at a meeting last night, but it had to be cancelled because two members of the three-man board were working. The commission includes Donald I. Burcham, chairman, Clarence E. Reagle and Atty. Ben H. Berman. P.K. Calhoun is secretary.

Counter-Attack Against Critics

Castro 'Goofed', Not U.S., Kennedy's Aides Declare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Kennedy administration, counter-attacking against criticism, said Monday Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro blundered by offering to swap Cuban prisoners for bulldozers and this nation boosted its prestige by calling his bluff.

The campaign, reportedly directed by President Kennedy, is aimed at countering criticism of U.S. support for the exchange. Republicans have said American prestige would be hurt if the United States gave in to what they called blackmail by Castro.

The administration tried to show Monday that just the opposite has happened.

In the forefront of the campaign was Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who described former Vice President Richard M. Nixon as morally, legally and politically wrong for denouncing the exchange.

And Edward R. Murrow, director of the U.S. Information Agency, told a news conference that Castro's offer raised "a ground swell of disgust" against Castro throughout Latin America.

"It is clear that Castro has blundered his way into a major blunder," Murrow said.

"One reckless statement by the Cuban dictator gave us the opportunity to dramatize and highlight the basic difference between a free society and a dictatorship," Humphrey said.

The counterattack, however, did not halt congressional criticism of the administration's approval of the private exchange.

Sen. Frank Lausche, D-Ohio, for example, said the United States was showing a lack of courage and was "yielding to blackmail."

The criticism mounted soon after a private U.S. committee, backed by the administration, accepted Castro's offer to exchange 1,200 prisoners for 500 machines. The prisoners are Cuban rebels captured in their abortive invasion of Cuba last month.

The committee, led by Eleanor Roosevelt, Walter Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers, and President Milton Eisenhower of Johns Hopkins University, is seeking $15 million in contributions to pay for the machines.

Millions of pleasure-bent Americans left a rising wake of highway deaths Monday in an extended Memorial Day holiday weekend.

The heavy toll raised fears of safety experts that the final count might surpass the 1957 Memorial weekend record of 413 killed in traffic.

Sunny spring weather, which predominated over wide areas throughout the holiday, brought millions of cars to jam the roads — and compounded the deadly combination of the inexpert occasional motorist and the unthinking speeder.

Judge Fines 17 'Riders' In Deep South Race Case

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Municipal Judge James Spencer convicted 17 more "Freedom Riders" Monday and slapped them with $200 fines and 60-day suspended jail sentences — the same penalties he imposed on 27 others last week.

Judge Spencer stressed, as he did when he sentenced those last week, that the Freedom Riders were tried on a breach of the peace charge, and not for violating Mississippi segregation laws.

Jack R. Young, the Negro defense attorney, said immediately after the 15-minute trial the Freedom Riders would not appeal.

Of the 27 Judge Spencer convicted and sentenced last Friday, only eight chose to post appeal bonds. The others preferred to remain in jail.

As Spencer was trying the 15 Negroes and 2 whites in Jackson, a workshop was in progress in New Orleans, teaching about two dozen students — most of them white — the techniques of nonviolence.

The workshop, sponsored by the Congress of Racial Equality, ostensibly was held to prime those for a bus trip reportedly to be made from New Orleans to Jackson Tuesday.

Those tried Monday arrived by bus from Memphis and Montgomery, Ala., Sunday and promptly went to City Jail when they refused to heed a police officer's order to move. The Freedom Riders attempted to use white facilities at the bus station and the arrests came when they ignored police orders.

The group Monday, like the first Freedom Riders, have the option of paying their fines, posting appeal bonds, or going to jail. The 60-day sentences were suspended at the request of the prosecution, as one prosecuting attorney said last week—"because we don't want to be too harsh."

Rotary Hears Plan

Eye Bank Slated To Serve District

An effort is underway to establish an eye bank in East Liverpool where a person can donate his eyes to be used after death for corneal transplant purposes for someone blinded by an accident or disease.

The plan was announced by Mrs. James Boylin, publicity chairman of the Beaver County Light House Eye Bank, at the Rotary Club's meeting Monday noon in the Travelers Hotel.

The part played by an eye bank in assisting with corneal transplanting was illustrated in a 26-minute color film prepared from case histories of the Eye Bank for Sight Restoration, Inc., of New York.

Narrated by Walter Pidgeon, the film pointed out the procedure followed when a person donates his eyes to be used after death to aid in restoring the vision of a person blinded by accident or disease.

THE MOVIE showed how the eye bank in New York City assisted in restoring the sight of a young boy who had been blinded by defective corneal tissue.

Using healthy corneal tissue from the eyes of a fashion model, surgeons restored the young boy's vision after the woman had been fatally injured in an auto accident in Florida.

The eye bank in New York was notified of the woman's death and her healthy corneas were packed in refrigerated cans, and flown by jet for transplanting in the youngster's eyes.

The film emphasized that the time element is one of the most important factors, as the eyes of the donor must be removed within three hours after death, and complete transplant made within 48 hours.

TRANSPLANTING is possible within the period, the narrator said, "corneal tissue lives for 48 hours even after death."

Eyes of persons with poor vision may be used for transplanting if the cornea is healthy. Not only can the clear corneas be used in the process, but the eyes themselves can be used for research into possible cures for various eye diseases.

There is no age limit for donors and all faiths and creeds have endorsed the Beaver County Light House Eye Bank, it was said.

DONORS MUST sign pledge cards before death with the next of kin as witness. The cards are then turned over to an eye bank and identification cards given to the donor for emergencies, thus aiding in meeting the required time for removal of the eyes within three hours after death.

There is no cost to the donor. The narrator said at least 30,000 persons with afflicted vision are awaiting donated corneas.

Mrs. Boylin pointed out that not all eyes of donors who sign pledge cards are used, as the time limit for removing the eyes after death has expired in all but one case out of 1,000.

AN EFFORT is underway to encourage civic groups and organizations in East Liverpool to see the film, entitled "Boy With A Blindfold." The nurses Alnae Association of City Hospital is one organization helping to promote the plan of establishing an eye bank in the city.

If established, the city branch would be affiliated with an eye bank in either Canton, Akron or Pittsburgh where the eyes of donors would be rushed after their death for transplanting in persons afflicted with blindness.

Besides Mrs. Boylin, other guests included Dr. Samuel Rich, Mrs. Carl Ludwig and Mrs. Ralph Clark, all of East Liverpool. Dr. Charles A. Gerace was program chairman. He was introduced by George Hargraves, president.

In East Liverpool, an upsurge of traffic is expected tonight. The downtown area had a mild traffic jam late yesterday afternoon, a mixture of holiday travelers and belated holiday shoppers.

The State Highway Patrol at Lisbon said traffic was very light Monday evening. A heavy surge is expected this afternoon and night.

The Wintersville State Highway Patrol near Steubenville reported traffic was gaining in volume early Monday night. The heavy rush was expected this afternoon and tonight.

The Rochester Barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police said traffic was fairly light Monday evening, but it also was expecting the rush tonight. The Carnegie Barracks near Pittsburgh said traffic was about normal, with the heavy "homeward" flow anticipated this evening.

both sides, the commission may affirm, disaffirm or modify the removal order issued by Safety Service Director Lee Copenhaver on charges initiated by Police Chief Americo Radeschi.

The chief's original order suspended Nott from the department, alleging the officer was "inefficient" because he was off duty as a result of illness for 315 days in 52 months. He was appointed to the department in May, 1956.

After investigating the case, the director ordered the removal effective May 15. The patrolman filed his appeal of the ruling Thursday, the deadline allowed for a protest.

Following the local hearing, Nott may appeal to Common Pleas Court at Lisbon if he desires.

Turnpike Crash Kills Cleveland Passenger

BEAVER FALLS — An auto crash four miles east of the Ohio state line on the Pennsylvania Turnpike Monday killed Myntolea Williams, 45, of Cleveland.

She was a passenger in an auto driven by Miss Myrmaeah Williams, 22, also of Cleveland. Miss Williams was reported in "fair" condition at Providence Hospital with lacerations.

State police said Miss Williams fell asleep at the wheel. The car swerved out of control and overturned, throwing out both occupants.

Summer Brings County 4-H Clubs' Work Into Full Swing

LISBON — Although many of the county 4-H clubs were in session throughout the year, all of the 90 clubs and the many segments of the program now are in full swing.

The county's 1,700 4-H members, under the supervision of 180 volunteer 4-H advisors, are busy preparing their 2,500 agricultural, homemaking and related projects for judging and exhibit.

All of the projects will be visited and scored by the extension agents, according to Joseph Burger, county extension agent in 4-H work. Then the projects will be completed for the selection days, County Fair and Ohio State Fair.

The county's 90 clubs all are meeting on a weekly or monthly basis as they complete their projects, carry out community service activities and prepare for county events.

The 70-piece 4-H Band, under the direction of John Shaffer, is rehearsing every Thursday evening and will make several playing engagements around the county, the County Fair and the State Fair.

Approximately 25 4-H clubs are busy putting the final touches on their acts for evening grandstand show, "4-H Revue," to be held Aug. 22. Chet Roof of Salem and

Harry West of Beaver Local School are heading the committee which is developing the show theme, "TV Through the Week."

Two hundred and fifty 4-H members are expected for the 4-H Camp June 18-22 for juniors and June 22-25 for seniors at Camp Aldersgate on Leesville Lake. Eighteen boys and girls have been selected as camp counselors and will attend a weekend training session as well as special activity and craft instruction periods.

The county Junior Leadership Club's 80 members are finalizing plans for coming events that include a July trip to Pymatuning Reservoir, a softball league and Fair activities.

Columbiana County's champion Junior Fair square dance team has been practicing under the direction of Vince Andrusis and Tom Rudebeck and plans to make several summer appearances.

Within the individual clubs, selections are being made for representatives to the county demonstration contest July 24 and the county health and safety contest July 10.

Throughout the remainder of the summer 4-H members will be honored through selection for various trips, awards, camp, club congress and the county's royal court, Burger said.

In Washington Monday, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy formally petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to spell out nationwide regulations outlawing racial segregations in interstate bus transportation and its attendant facilities.

At New Orleans, George Lincoln Rockwell and nine members of his American Nazi party — opposed to race-mixers and Communists — were in their fourth day of a hunger strike in Parish (County) Jail.

The 10 were arrested last Thursday and charged with disturbing the peace in connection with their picket of the Israel-based film "Exodus."

exercise better judgment in every other way," said Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, "this Memorial Day holiday will become the most tragic we have ever recorded."

Multiple-death crashes were numerous as families or groups of friends toured. Several crashes took as many as four lives simultaneously.

The traffic toll ran far ahead of fatality experience for nonholiday periods covering similar 102-hour stretches from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Tuesday.

The safety council said deaths for such a period at this season of the year would be expected to number 385.

The last four-day Memorial weekend period was in 1957 when the 413 traffic fatality record was set. In that holiday 134 persons drowned, and miscellaneous other accidents took 113 lives—an overall toll of 660.

Hopes of Ohio highway safety officials for a good record in the Memorial Day period remained high Monday—sustained by an unusually low fatality count during the past weekend.

About the time of an expected increase in holiday traffic began late Monday afternoon, Ohio had counted just five traffic deaths since 6 p.m. Friday. In addition, there were six other accidental deaths reported, one in a boating accident, one by drowning and four from miscellaneous causes.

In his address, Dr. Arnold stressed that the graduates' real success depends less on the money they earn and the position and honor they receive than on "what kind of a person you are."

"The greatest need in the world today is not for science, mathematics or scholarship; it is for human understanding, gentleness and courage," he said.

"The peoples of the world are in real danger of destroying themselves through a lack of these qualities," Dr. Arnold asserted.

C. WALTER ASHBAUGH, president of the Board of Education, and Principal George Hargraves presented the diplomas to the 302 seniors after which David Lampman, class president, led the Graduates' Creed and the class sang the Alma Mater.

The Rev. Lawrence Tomb, pastor of the First Free Methodist Church, gave the invocation and the benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Albert Rodenhause of the First Baptist Church.

The wind ensemble played "Intermezzo from Folk Suite" as the prelude and "March Processional" as the graduates entered the auditorium. The recessional was "Solemn March."

4 Motorists Forfeit

In East Liverpool, an upsurge of traffic is expected tonight. The downtown area had a mild traffic jam late yesterday afternoon, a mixture of holiday travelers and belated holiday shoppers.

The State Highway Patrol at Lisbon said traffic was very light Monday evening. A heavy surge is expected this afternoon and night.

The Wintersville State Highway Patrol near Steubenville reported traffic was gaining in volume early Monday night. The heavy rush was expected this afternoon and tonight.

The Rochester Barracks of the Pennsylvania State Police said traffic was fairly light Monday evening, but it also was expected the rush tonight. The Carnegie Barracks near Pittsburgh said traffic was about normal, with the heavy "homeward" flow anticipated this evening.

The chief's original order suspended Nott from the department, alleging the officer was "inefficient" because he was off duty as a result of illness for 315 days in 52 months. He was appointed to the department in May, 1956.

After investigating the case, the director ordered the removal effective May 15. The patrolman filed his appeal of the ruling Thursday, the deadline allowed for a protest.

Following the local hearing, Nott may appeal to Common Pleas Court at Lisbon if he desires.

Lias Hearing Delayed By New Technicality

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new trial in the years-long fight of William G. (Big Bill) Lias to escape deportation was postponed again Monday after a federal judge disqualified himself from presiding.

An attorney for the one-time West Virginia rackets king objected to Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy hearing the case because of a previous role in it. McGarraghy then removed himself from the case.

Turnpike Crash Kills Cleveland Passenger

BEAVER FALLS — An auto crash four miles east of the Ohio state line on the Pennsylvania Turnpike Monday killed Myrtolea Williams, 45, of Cleveland.

She was a passenger in an auto driven by Miss Myrtolea Williams, 22, also of Cleveland. Miss Williams was reported in "fair" condition at Providence Hospital with lacerations.

State police said Miss Williams fell asleep at the wheel. The car swerved out of control and overturned, throwing out both occupants.

Summer Brings County 4-H Clubs' Work Into Full Swing

LISBON — Although many of the county 4-H clubs were in session throughout the year, all of the 90 clubs and the many segments of the program now are in full swing.

The county's 1,700 4-H members, under the supervision of 180 volunteer 4-H advisors, are busy preparing their 2,500 agricultural, homemaking and related projects for judging and exhibition.

All of the projects will be visited and scored by the extension agents, according to Joseph Burger, county extension agent in 4-H work. Then the projects will be completed for the selection days, County Fair and Ohio State Fair.

The county's 90 clubs all are meeting on a weekly or monthly basis as they complete their projects, carry out community service activities and prepare for county events.

The 70-piece 4-H Band, under the direction of John Shaffer, is rehearsing every Thursday evening and will make several playing engagements around the county, the County Fair and the State Fair.

Approximately 25 4-H clubs are busy putting the final touches on their acts for evening grandstand show, "4-H Revue," to be held Aug. 22. Chet Roof of Salem and

Harry West of Beaver Local School are heading the committee which is developing the show theme, "TV Through the Week."

Two hundred and fifty 4-H members are expected for the 4-H Camp June 18-22 for juniors and June 22-25 for seniors at Camp Aldersgate on Leesville Lake. Eighteen boys and girls have been selected as camp counselors and will attend a weekend training session as well as special activity and craft instruction periods.

The county Junior Leadership Club's 80 members are finalizing plans for coming events that include a July trip to Pymatuning Reservoir, a softball league and Fair activities.

Columbiana County's champion Junior Fair square dance team has been practicing under the direction of Vince Andrusis and Tom Rudebeck and plans to make several summer appearances.

Within the individual clubs, selections are being made for representatives to the county demonstration contest July 24 and the county health and safety contest July 10.

Throughout the remainder of the summer 4-H members will be honored through selection for various trips, awards, camp, club congress and the county's royal court, Burger said.

exercise better judgment in every other way," said Howard Pyle, president of the National Safety Council, "this Memorial Day holiday will become the most tragic we have ever recorded."

Multiple-death crashes were numerous as families or groups of friends toured. Several crashes took as many as four lives simultaneously.

The traffic toll ran far ahead of fatality experience for nonholiday periods covering similar 102-hour stretches from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Tuesday.

The safety council said deaths for such a period at this season of the year would be expected to number 385.

The last four-day Memorial weekend period was in 1957 when the 413 traffic fatality record was set. In that holiday 134 persons drowned, and miscellaneous other accidents took 113 lives—an overall toll of 660.

Hopes of Ohio highway safety officials for a good record in the Memorial Day period remained high Monday—sustained by an unusually low fatality count during the past weekend.

About the time of an expected increase in holiday traffic began late Monday afternoon, Ohio had counted just five traffic deaths since 6 p.m. Friday. In addition, there were six other accidental deaths reported, one in a boating accident, one by drowning and four from miscellaneous causes.

"The peoples of the world are in real danger of destroying themselves through a lack of these qualities," Dr. Arnold asserted.

A Day For Recollection

Ask young people what Memorial Day means and their answer may be that it means next to nothing, unless they grew up in small towns and took part as children in parades to the cemetery.

It has turned into a day of recollection for the aging and the aged.

They remember the slow march led by sweet fragrance of the peonies and lilacs with which the graves of the "boys in blue and the boys in gray" were decorated.

It is a time for turning back the clock.

There was the clippity-clop of shod horses on brick pavements and the rumble of rubber-tired carriages bearing the ever-dwindling handful of survivors.

There was the soft shuffle of unshod horses that had brought buggiesloads of people in from the countryside to listen to the Memorial Day oration and to watch the parade.

Everywhere were American flags of all sizes and flowers and summer dresses and straw hats and parasols. Everybody then had known someone who had been in the war, and in thousands of homes mementoes of the conflict still were displayed in places of honor.

"Decoration Day." That was what it was called oftener than it was called "Memorial Day." It was a better title, taking everything into consideration. It said what was in people's hearts.

The season of flowers had come. The season of cold and lifelessness had gone. Winter-worn graves needed to be tended. Graves of the Civil War soldiers merited first attention, but the graves of all the remembered ones who lay in the "quiet city" were given the same care.

"Decoration Day."

"Memorial Day."

They say the same thing. They evoke memories that may be more poignant to some of us than to others. But to all of us they are a reminder of the spring-time beauty that can cover all ugly scars—the tender touch that heals aching hearts.

The Color Of Our Money

The intent to start discussion about a proposed system of issuing paper money in various colors is so obvious the U.S. Treasury's trial-ballooning can be forgiven. It is more interesting to talk about than some of the momentous subjects now under discussion.

The color of our money is part of the complex of conditioned reflexes that keep us from flipping our lids. It is one of the things we latch on to when we need an anchor to windward. The color of our money is basic.

It is a lovely reassuring green, tastefully decorated in black. From a distance of 20 feet no one can tell whether we are peeling cabbage off a roll of $1 bills or $100 bills. During intervals of financial optimism, we almost are able to fool ourselves. At times like that we are especially pleased that the color of money is basic — one of the few things you can depend on, like the tastelessness of rice pudding when the raisins have been left out.

This, then, is our potshot at the Treasury's trial balloon about vari-colored money. It would be as popular as those $2 bills they tried to foist off on us, which were in turn as popular as a $3 bill would have been. There's no demand for vari-colored money.

We don't want anyone eyeing our roll when we take the mousetrap off it and sniffing. "Look, it's all green!" Green would continue to be the color of $1 bills, which will continue to dominate what passes for a roll in our circle. Only the big stuff would come in something other than green.

Lindy Had Plenty Of Time

Nothing could be more impressive than the demonstration that an Air Force bomber, the B58, can fly from New York to Paris in only one-tenth the time it took Charles A. Lindbergh to make the flight 34 years ago this month.

The B58, flying sometimes at twice the speed of sound, covered the distance in only 3 hours and 20 minutes, at an average speed of 1,105 miles an hour. When Lindbergh chugged across the Atlantic in 1927 he was in the air 33½ hours and was hard pressed to average 109 miles an hour.

On top of all other startling statistics, the B58, otherwise known as "Hustler," had flown from its Texas base to Washington, D.C., in 2 hours and 16 minutes and from Washington to New York in 19 minutes. No doubt about it, the B58 makes the aerial exploits of Lindy seem poky.

But before his exploit is totally obscured by the exploits of the new era in aviation, where everything is going to be done at twice the speed of sound by tense men dressed for unearthly adventures on the edge of space, there's something that needs to be said.

That young fellow Lindbergh, is 59 years old now. He had plenty of time to get where he was going in 1927 because there was no hurry then. All he was trying to prove was the reliability of airplanes, which was questionable.

It was the hope of aviation's pioneers that they might someday build confidence in airplanes. Lindbergh wasn't trying to scare anyone, bluff anyone, or get in good with anyone. He had nothing on his mind except the future of the airplane as a facility for getting from one place to another.

If the Air Force, designers, builders, spenders, appropriators, strategists and so on who are putting everything on the line for supersonic bombers today and missiles tomorrow could say the same thing 34 years later, millions of human beings who now need pills to go to sleep could lie down and doze off like kittens.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

"Should the First Lady wear 'em that high?" is question sweeping households of land. Mrs. Kennedy is wearing skirts so short she is giving the country new look.

She is youthful, smart looking under all circumstances and an early bird with new styles, but never in history has White House had a First Lady whose legs were prominent in newsreels, TV coverage and press photographs.

Admittedly the female leg has long been nothing to be classified as top secret and short skirt is no novelty. Nevertheless the kneecap has never before been revealable in White House or at government ceremonies.

From the days of Martha Washington on through Dolly Madison, Mrs. Lincoln, the two Mrs. Roosevelts, Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Eisenhower their legs have been enveloped in modest mystery. In most instances not much was known about their ankles. Extreme styles stopped at White House door.

For Mamie to have paraded in knee high skirts would have seemed scandalous. Who among the populace had remote idea what Mrs. Calvin College's "stems" looked like. But from inaugural day on, Jacqueline's have been on view before millions. In the sacrificial material?

Mrs. Kennedy is stylish eye-ful with a teen-age figure. Critics of her skirt lengths are perhaps old-fashioned and too long on dignity. Nevertheless many people are asking if the President shouldn't take her aside and say "Do not ask what a short skirt can do for a lady; ask what a lady can do for a short skirt."

asking America, "How did you get into this anyhow?"

Building firm putting up skyscrapers has issued a booklet so sidewalk superintendents can get all details of operation. It may become possible for an engineer or puzzled worker to ask spectator, "Say, just what am I doing anyhow?"

GOVERNMENT may issue paper money in colors before end of year. It will make money look better even if it ain't what it used to be in performance. Only dollar bills will remain in traditional green and white. Fives, tens and twenties will be in gay hues. Colors have not been announced, but we make following suggestions: $5 bills, dark blue because purchasing power is so depressing; $10 bills, yellow to emphasize caution in offering it to a waiter for any dinner for two if it includes shrimp cocktail, dessert and extra cup of coffee; $20 bills, polka dots to establish at once that you are lucky enough to have so much money on person.

Money situation really calls for a pocket-book which lights up when there is anything above a dollar inside. Sock which glows when the money stuffed in it, begins to deteriorate would also be a good idea.

We also favor bankbooks in gay tones and a check book which flashes red light if account is getting low.

New bills, we hear will also be in different sizes and shapes, like four-cent postage stamps. This will confuse us somewhat and we can be expected to put a $5 bill on a letter and try to deposit a postage stamp in the bank account.

Odd Facts

Adhesive postage stamps were first used in the United States in July 1847. Prior to that, a person posting a letter was required to present it at the post office, where a clerk determined the amount of postage due according to the distance the letter was to travel. Then the patron paid the amount which was written on the face of his envelope.

Refugees from Communist China are pouring into Hong Kong at the rate of 100,000 a year, the British colony now sheltering more than a million mainland escapees from the Red Chinese regime.

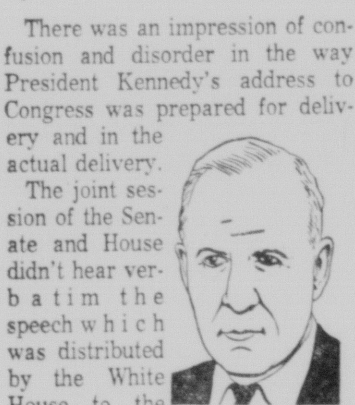

The number of morning and evening daily newspapers in the United States, according to latest available count, is 1,755, with a total circulation of about 58,299,723.

Falling Right In Step

A Study Of The President's Address

By David Lawrence

There was an impression of confusion and disorder in the way President Kennedy's address to Congress was prepared for delivery and in the actual delivery.

The joint session of the Senate and House didn't hear verbatim the speech which was distributed by the White House to the press about David Lawrence three hours earlier. Whole sections — approximately 1,500 words — were deleted or changed as the President spoke. The reason given is that this was necessary so as not to use up too much television time. Mr. Kennedy spoke for 44 minutes.

After it was over, the announcement was made by the White House that the Congressional Record would publish the full text of the speech, including not only the brief passages which the President added extemporaneously but also the sections which were eliminated as he spoke.

What then becomes the official text of the President's speech? What was transmitted to the Congress of the United States as the official recommendation of the chief executive?

Does the "interpolated" version constitute an official expression?

Often in the past a president has made slight changes as he spoke or has added a sentence or two here and there, but the Congressional Record would usually print the stenographic report of what was actually said.

Perhaps it was a good thing Mr. Kennedy did some editing. For in the prepared copy given to the press there occurs this puzzling statement:

"Too often we have accepted a merely defensive role. Too often we have let ourselves appear as friends of the status quo — and the status quo may be $50 a year. Meanwhile the pressures of the totalitarian conspiracy mount higher every day, as one nation after another, by internal more often than external means, finds its freedom under attack."

What does the "$50 a year" have to do with it?

AS DELIVERED, the address was more than 8,000 words in length. Anything that runs 44 minutes tends to tire the audience and it was apparent that many members of Congress received the speech in a rather indifferent mood — judging by the relatively few manifestations of applause in comparison with the numerous outbursts when Mr. Kennedy appeared last time before a joint session.

It was most unfortunate that the President decided to cover so much ground in a single message. It would have been far more effective if he had devoted a separate message or communication on different days to each of the important topics that he discussed. Thus, the problem of outer space and the importance of research, including the prospective trip to the moon by some American astronaut, would have made more of an impression on Congress if it had been the subject of a single message.

As it was, Mr. Kennedy tried to cover too much ground and perhaps the reason was that he is going to Europe soon and sought to get off his mind and into the minds of members of Congress the point of view of the administration on many things.

Or perhaps it was the desire for publicity through television

Date Withheld

By Truman Twill

It has been more years than I want to think about since the Memorial Day I remember best. Everybody has one special holiday that he remembers best.

Such as the Thanksgiving my mother's family had the reunion at a big farm house in the country and I showed off our first-born son and his mother. About 15 minutes before it was time to sit down for Thanksgiving dinner, the word came out of the kitchen that I should get out there on the double to carve the turkey. Why me?

I never found out. But with no previous experience I sliced up two 20-pounds-plus turkeys in record time and ever since have been the Tribe's ceremonial meat-cutter.

The Memorial Day I remember is hooked up with Lola, Evelyn and George. I have no idea where they are now, having lost all contact with them after we were graduated from high school. It was long ago.

They might not remember that particular day anyway, to even want to, because it was all so long ago. But after the morning parade and an interval for lunch, Evelyn and George and Lola and I went dancing.

The two girls had put their heads together to design and make identical dresses. Evelyn was dark-haired and blue-eyed. Lola was blonde and blue-eyed. Their identical dresses were only half the fun. George and I had a surprise to offer, too. On my sacred honor as a hack, dear readers, we wore pearl-gray spats, gray trousers, blue coats and gray vests!

The way we four kids sized it up that afternoon and evening as we waltzed and fox-trotted — a nickel a whirl, with a free encore — we were the most.

All things seemed plausible and possible. We had the grace of panthers and the endurance of mules. The dance pavilion was open on all four sides. The world was good, outside and in. The orchestra was good and for all I can remember may have been famous.

Nothing was left to be desired. I can even remember the automobile we rode in — a Model T Ford coupe with a black body and yellow wheels. It was one of the first go-devils to be equipped with an innovation — balloon tires. It belonged to my brother.

Occasionally since then people have wanted me to share their worry about the younger generation and how giddy it is. I've never fallen for this.

No one ever was giddier than we were that Memorial Day. And what came of it? I don't know about the other three, but as for me — just let me be that giddy again, just once, with the grace of a panther and the endurance of a mule! And with my best friend George, his best girl Evelyn and the one and only Lola to share the fun.

A Memorial Day Omen

By John N. Adams

Can Free World Survive The Challenge?

From sunrise until noon today, as on every May 30 since Memorial Day was first observed as a national holiday, the flag will be flown at half-mast from public buildings and private homes in cities and villages across the land.

To many on this May 30, the flag at half-mast not only is a token of mourning for the heroes who died in war—it also is an omen. They see an erosion of the free world and the way of life that our honored heroes gave their lives to preserve.

There are grave and widespread doubts about the strength and vitality of the free world to survive the challenges of a totalitarian enemy.

These doubts are fed by moral decay within our national life and Communist leadership in the space race and successes in the cold war. Violence and mob rule such as the current outbreak in Montgomery, Ala., and similar racial riots last year in Little Rock, Ark., are the tinder that could set off a national conflagration of lawlessness that would destroy us as a nation.

Recent exposures of price-rigging, payola, collusive bidding, fixes, pay offs, kickbacks, wild-cat strikes, featherbedding — the list is almost endless — tear away at belief this nation can long endure.

This year, as in 1960, the United States has been held up to international ridicule.

There will be parades and speeches at cemeteries. There will be a temporary revival of the conviction that the heroes we have honored died for a just cause and not in vain.

But long speeches will not effect a permanent cure. At best they only will stir us out of our lethargy and into action.

WE MUST get over the idea that we have held so long, that money and more money is the answer to all our problems, from social security to national security.

We must get back to the principles that made this country great. We must rid our own house of the corrupting influences that have entered our national life and get back to the fundamentals that made America strong.

This year, the United States began the first year of a four-year observance of the centennial of the Civil War. That conflict, out of which grew our observance of Memorial Day, was one of the darkest periods in the history of our country.

The nation survived that crisis and it must survive our present crises.

There already are some bright spots breaking through the gloom.

While Russian space accomplishments have captured the imagination of the world, the United States hasn't been entirely devoid of successes in the space field.

LAST YEAR Memorial Day fell on the heels of the U2 exposure and the subsequent collapse of the Paris Summit Conference. This Memorial Day follows closely the invasion debacle in Cuba while the Communists score propaganda successes in Geneva while their agents infiltrate Laos, Africa and Southeast Asia.

Some extremists would meet the totalitarian challenge with totalitarian-type inquisitions.

Fortunately, these extremists, while making the most noise, are a small minority that are ever present in a free society. The nation has weathered their outcries in the past but their tirades are getting louder and gaining more converts and there is danger that we will lose the battle at home.

For the great majority of Americans, this Memorial Day will be observed as it has been in the past. Flowers will be placed on soldiers' graves.

THE LAUNCHING of our first spaceman in full glare of a watching world has left no doubt of its success and has proven that the land of the free has not lost all its vigor and still is the home of the brave.

The Russians do not have strikes at their missile bases, neither do they have laws that guarantee them the right to strike.

They have no trouble launching guerrilla wars neither do they have a free press.

It is not slave camps or guerrilla training schools that is America's greatest need but bold ventures into the future with our unused human potentialities.

Now is the time for moral as well as military rearmament — "to do what we can for our country" — to put real meaning into the words, "one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Schools And Hypocrisy

By Raymond Moley

It should be clear to anyone by this time that the problem of federal school aid is not educational or financial but political.

First, let us dispose of the education side. If, as the sponsors of federal aid say, American children are not getting enough or the right kind of education, how can improvement in educational quality be guaranteed by the federal government under the Kennedy bill? It says that the federal government will not seek to determine how the federal money is to be spent.

If the states and school districts have been doing so badly with the money they have been spending, how on earth can anyone be sure they will do any better with the addition of about 3½ per cent from the federal kitty? (That is about the proportion of the costs of public education proposed in the Kennedy plan.)

If a man who has been waiving his money comes to borrow some more, you are likely to tell him something about throwing "good money after bad."

federal income tax collected therein, to be used for any purpose the state chooses? Or give every taxpayer a chance to shave off his income tax payment an amount equal to what he pays in property taxes in his community for the support of schools? That is the plan proposed by Sen. Goldwater.

No! The proponents are determined to jam through the bill exactly as it has been demanded by pressure groups such as the AFL-CIO, the NEA, and other convenient sources of votes.

I might, if it would seem to serve any purpose, recite once more the facts which show that the states and school districts have been, are, and will be quite capable of meeting needs.

It is merely worth while here to note that every new bill, every year, comes with a new set of figures manufactured by the Office of Education. These figures always show vast needs, even though the needs which were shown in previous compilations were all met.

But what's the use of such figure matching? There are certain interests determined to get the foot of the federal government into the school doors of the nation.

Figures, words, rational arguments are of no avail when politicians begin to scramble for the favor of such powerful pressure groups. And it now seems that they may succeed.

TO COMPOUND the hypocrisy, the very nature of the proposed federal aid involves control. It already discriminates against all American children whose parents choose to pay their way at private schools. Can anyone believe that the seeming intention of Rep. Adam Clayton Powell not to introduce his amendment, limiting aid to desegregated schools, does not mean that he has some assurance that the President will accomplish the same purpose by executive order? That would be another form of discrimination.

As a matter of fact, if the federal government is going to hand out money to the states and fails to make certain that the money is spent for what was intended, it would be abandoning its duty.

The hypocrisy of the supporters of the bill in the Senate—and hypocrisy comes very easily to Sen. Wayne Morse, who is engineering the business—is shown by the rejection by a quick vote of every means suggested to have aid given in a manner which would completely bar control.

FOR EXAMPLE, if, as is claimed, it is so hard for local communities to raise money and so easy for the federal government to raise money, then why not simply return to the respective states a percentage of the

A Day For Recollection

Ask young people what Memorial Day means and their answer may be that it means next to nothing, unless they grew up in small towns and took part as children in parades to the cemetery.

It has turned into a day of recollection for the aging and the aged.

They remember the slow march led by sweet fragrance of the peonies and lilacs with which the graves of the "boys in blue and the boys in gray" were decorated.

It is a time for turning back the clock.

There was the clippity-clop of shod horses on brick pavements and the rumble of rubber-tired carriages bearing the ever-dwindling handful of survivors.

There was the soft shuffle of unshod horses that had brought buggiesloads of people in from the countryside to listen to the Memorial Day oration and to watch the parade.

Everywhere were American flags of all sizes and flowers and summer dresses and straw hats and parasols. Everybody then had known someone who had been in the war, and in thousands of homes mementoes of the conflict still were displayed in places of honor.

"Decoration Day." That was what it was called oftener than it was called "Memorial Day." It was a better title, taking everything into consideration. It said what was in people's hearts.

The season of flowers had come. The season of cold and lifelessness had gone. Winter-worn graves needed to be tended. Graves of the Civil War soldiers merited first attention, but the graves of all the remembered ones who lay in the "quiet city" were given the same care.

"Decoration Day."

"Memorial Day."

They say the same thing. They evoke memories that may be more poignant to some of us than to others. But to all of us they are a reminder of the spring-time beauty that can cover all ugly scars—the tender touch that heals aching hearts.

The Color Of Our Money

The intent to start discussion about a proposed system of issuing paper money in various colors is so obvious the U.S. Treasury's trial-ballooning can be forgiven. It is more interesting to talk about than some of the momentous subjects now under discussion.

The color of our money is part of the complex of conditioned reflexes that keep us from flipping our lids. It is one of the things we latch on to when we need an anchor to windward. The color of our money is basic.

It is a lovely reassuring green, tastefully decorated in black. From a distance of 20 feet no one can tell whether we are peeling cabbage off a roll of $1 bills or $100 bills. During intervals of financial optimism, we almost are able to fool ourselves. At times like that we are especially pleased that the color of money is basic — one of the few things you can depend on, like the tastelessness of rice pudding when the raisins have been left out.

This, then, is our potshot at the Treasury's trial balloon about vari-colored money. It would be as popular as those $2 bills they tried to foist off on us, which were in turn as popular as a $3 bill would have been. There's no demand for vari-colored money.

We don't want anyone eyeing our roll when we take the mousetrap off it and sniffing, "Look, it's all green!" Green would continue to be the color of $1 bills, which will continue to dominate what passes for a roll in our circle. Only the big stuff would come in something other than green.

Lindy Had Plenty Of Time

Nothing could be more impressive than the demonstration that an Air Force bomber, the B58, can fly from New York to Paris in only one-tenth the time it took Charles A. Lindbergh to make the flight 34 years ago this month.

The B58, flying sometimes at twice the speed of sound, covered the distance in only 3 hours and 20 minutes, at an average speed of 1,105 miles an hour. When Lindbergh chugged across the Atlantic in 1927 he was in the air 33½ hours and was hard pressed to average 109 miles an hour.

On top of all other startling statistics, the B58, otherwise known as "Hustler," had flown from its Texas base to Washington, D.C., in 2 hours and 16 minutes and from Washington to New York in 19 minutes. No doubt about it, the B58 makes the aerial exploits of Lindy seem pokey.

But before the exploit is totally obscured by the exploits of the new era in aviation, where everything is going to be done at twice the speed of sound by tense men dressed for unearthly adventures on the edge of space, there's something that needs to be said.

That young fellow Lindbergh, is 59 years old now. He had plenty of time to get where he was going in 1927 because there was no hurry then. All he was trying to prove was the reliability of airplanes, which was questionable.

It was the hope of aviation's pioneers that they might someday build confidence in airplanes. Lindbergh wasn't trying to scare anyone, bluff anyone, or get in good with anyone. He had nothing on his mind except the future of the airplane as a facility for getting from one place to another.

If the Air Force, designers, builders, spenders, appropriators, strategists and so on who are putting everything on the line for supersonic bombers today and missiles tomorrow could say the same thing 34 years later, millions of human beings who now need pills to go to sleep could lie down and doze off like kittens.

The Once Over

"Should the First Lady wear 'em that high?" is question sweeping households of land. Mrs. Kennedy is wearing skirts so short she is giving the country new look.

She is youthful, smart looking under all circumstances and an early bird with new styles, but never in history has White House had a First Lady whose legs were prominent in newsreels, TV coverage and press photographs.

Admittedly the female leg has long been nothing to be classified as top secret and short skirt is no novelty. Nevertheless the kneecap has never before been revealable in White House or at government ceremonies.

From the days of Martha Washington on through Dolly Madison, Mrs. Lincoln, the two Mrs. Roosevelts, Mrs. Truman and Mrs. Eisenhower their legs have been enveloped in modest mystery. In most instances not much was known about their ankles. Extreme styles stopped at White House door.

For Mamie to have paraded in knee high skirts would have seemed scandalous. Who among the populace had remote idea what Mrs. Calvin College's "stems" looked like. But from inaugural day on, Jacqueline has been on view before millions. In the sacrificing material?

Mrs. Kennedy is stylish eye-ful with a teen-age figure. Critics of her skirt lengths are perhaps old-fashioned and too long on dignity. Nevertheless many people are asking if the President shouldn't take her aside and say "Do not ask what a short skirt can do for a lady; ask what a lady can do for a short skirt."

GOVERNMENT may issue paper money in colors before end of year. It will make money look better even if it ain't what it used to be in performance. Only dollar bills will remain in traditional green and white. Fives, tens and twenties will be in gay hues. Colors have not been announced, but we make following suggestions: $5 bills, dark blue because purchasing power is so depressing; $10 bills, yellow to emphasize caution in offering it to a waiter for any dinner for two if it includes shrimp cocktail, dessert and extra cup of coffee; $20 bills, polka dots to establish at once that you are lucky enough to have so much money on person.

Money situation really calls for a pocket-book which lights up when there is anything above a dollar inside. Sock which glows when the money stuffed in it, begins to deteriorate would also be a good idea.

We also favor bankbooks in gay tones and a check book which flashes red light if account is getting low.

New bills, we hear will also be in different sizes and shapes, like four-cent postage stamps. This will confuse us somewhat and we can be expected to put a $5 bill on a letter and try to deposit a postage stamp in the bank account.

Odd Facts

Adhesive postage stamps were first used in the United States in July 1847. Prior to that, a person posting a letter was required to present it at the post office, where a clerk determined the amount of postage due according to the distance the letter was to travel. Then the patron paid the amount which was written on the face of his envelope.

Falling Right In Step

A Study Of The President's Address

By David Lawrence

There was an impression of confusion and disorder in the way President Kennedy's address to Congress was prepared for delivery and in the actual delivery.

The joint session of the Senate and House didn't hear very much of the speech which was distributed by the White House to the press about David Lawrence three hours earlier. Whole sections — approximately 1,500 words — were deleted or changed as the President spoke. The reason given is that this was necessary so as not to use up too much television time. Mr. Kennedy spoke for 44 minutes.

After it was over, the announcement was made by the White House that the Congressional Record would publish the full text of the speech, including not only the brief passages which the President added extemporaneously but also the sections which were eliminated as he spoke.

What then becomes the official text of the President's speech? What was transmitted to the Congress of the United States as the official recommendation of the chief executive?

Does the "interpolated" version constitute an official expression? Often in the past a president has made slight changes as he spoke or has added a sentence or two here and there, but the Congressional Record would usually print the stenographic report of what was actually said.

Perhaps it was a good thing Mr. Kennedy did some editing. For in the prepared copy given to the press there occurs this puzzling statement:

"Too often we have accepted a merely defensive role. Too often we have let ourselves appear as friends of the status quo — and the status quo may be $50 a year. Meanwhile the pressures of the totalitarian conspiracy mount higher every day, as one nation after another, by internal more often than external means, finds its freedom under attack."

What does the "$50 a year" have to do with it?

AS DELIVERED, the address was more than 6,000 words in length. Anything that runs 44 minutes tends to tire the audience and it was apparent that many members of Congress received the speech in a rather indifferent mood — judging by the relatively few manifestations of applause in comparison with the numerous outbursts when Mr. Kennedy appeared last time before a joint session.

It was most unfortunate that the President decided to cover so much ground in a single message. It would have been far more effective if he had devoted a separate message or communication on different days to each of the important topics that he discussed. Thus, the problem of outer space and the importance of research, including the prospective trip to the moon by some American astronaut, would have made more of an impression on Congress if it had been the subject of a single message.

As it was, Mr. Kennedy tried to cover too much ground and perhaps the reason was that he is going to Europe soon and sought to get off his mind and into the minds of members of Congress the point of view of the administration on many things.

Or perhaps it was the desire for publicity through television that caused the President's advisers to persuade him to deliver an omnibus message.

The orderly conduct of the government's business and the need for a thorough presentation of current issues to the Congress should, it would seem, outweigh the passion for television exposures.

THERE REALLY is little new in the President's address. He asks for more federal appropriations. He hopes that the budget will not be too far out of balance. He is pleased that economic recovery is on the way. He is right also in asking for the small amount of money needed for the U.S. Information Agency broadcasts to other countries.

As for the major recommendations about military reorganization and defense programs, these were presented by Mr. Kennedy in very general terms.

The program he recommends for manpower development and training, to give several hundred thousands of workers new occupational skills, is a step in the right direction.

With respect to the coming meetings with Premier Khrushchev, Mr. Kennedy insisted in his message that "no formal agenda is planned and no negotiations will be undertaken" but that there is to be a "personal exchange of views." He added:

"Yet it is important to know that our patience at the bargaining table is nearly inexhaustible, though our credulity is limited — that our hopes for peace are unfailing, while our determination to protect our security is resolute."

These are generalities — more words added to the thousands that have been uttered in recent weeks in the hope of impressing Khrushchev.

Date Withheld

By Truman Twill

It has been more years than I want to think about since the Memorial Day I remember best. Everybody has one special holiday that he remembers best.

Such as the Thanksgiving my mother's family had the reunion at a big farm house in the country and I showed off our first-born son and his mother. About 15 minutes before it was time to sit down for Thanksgiving dinner, the word came out of the kitchen that I should get out there on the double to carve the turkey. Why me?

I never found out. But with no previous experience I sliced up two 20-pound-plus turkeys in record time and ever since have been the Tribe's ceremonial meat-cutter.

The Memorial Day I remember is hooked up with Lola, Evelyn and George. I have no idea where they are now, having lost all contact with them after we were graduated from high school. It was long ago.

They might not remember that particular day anyway, to even want to, because it was all so long ago. But after the morning parade and an interval for lunch, Evelyn and George and Lola and I went dancing.

The two girls had put their heads together to design and make identical dresses. Evelyn was dark-haired and blue-eyed. Lola was blonde and blue-eyed. Their identical dresses were only half the fun. George and I had a surprise to offer, too. On my sacred honor as a hack, dear readers, we wore pearl-gray spats, gray trousers, blue coats and gray vests!

The way we four kids sized it up that afternoon and evening as we waltzed and fox-trotted — a nickel a whirl, with a free encore — we were the most.

All things seemed plausible and possible. We had the grace of panthers and the endurance of mules. The dance pavilion was open on all four sides. The world was good, outside and in. The orchestra was good and for all I can remember may have been famous.

Nothing was left to be desired. I can even remember the automobile we rode in — a Model T Ford coupe with a black body and yellow wheels. It was one of the first go-devils to be equipped with an innovation — balloon tires. It belonged to my brother.

Occasionally since then people have wanted me to share their worry about the younger generation and how giddy it is. I've never fallen for this.

No one ever was giddier than we were that Memorial Day. And what came of it? I don't know about the other three, but as for me — just let me be that giddy again, just once, with the grace of a panther and the endurance of a mule! And with my best friend George, his best girl Evelyn and the one and only Lola to share the fun.

A Memorial Day Omen

By John N. Adams

Can Free World Survive The Challenge?

From sunrise until noon today, as on every May 30 since Memorial Day was first observed as a national holiday, the flag will be flown at half-mast from public buildings and private homes in cities and villages across the land.

To many on this May 30, the flag at half-mast not only is a token of mourning for the heroes who died in war—it also is an omen. They see an erosion of the free world and the way of life that our honored heroes gave their lives to preserve.

There are grave and widespread doubts about the strength and vitality of the free world to survive the challenges of a totalitarian enemy.

These doubts are fed by moral decay within our national life and Communist leadership in the space race and successes in the cold war. Violence and mob rule such as the current outbreak in Montgomery, Ala., and similar racial riots last year in Little Rock, Ark., are the tinder that could set off a national conflagration of lawlessness that would destroy us as a nation.

Recent exposures of price-rigging, payola, collusive bidding, fixes, pay offs, kickbacks, wild-cat strikes, featherbedding — the list is almost endless — tear away at belief this nation can long endure.

This year, as in 1960, the United States has been held up to international ridicule.

There will be parades and speeches at cemeteries. There will be a temporary revival of the conviction that the heroes we have honored died for a just cause and not in vain.

But long speeches will not effect a permanent cure. At best they only stir us out of our lethargy and into action.

WE MUST get over the idea that we have held so long, that money and more money is the answer to all our problems, from social security to national security.

We must get back to the principles that made this country great. We must rid our own house of the corrupting influences that have entered our national life and get back to the fundamentals that made America strong.

This year, the United States began the first year of a four-year observance of the centennial of the Civil War. That conflict, out of which grew our observance of Memorial Day, was one of the darkest periods in the history of our country.

The nation survived that crisis and it must survive our present crises.

There already are some bright spots breaking through the gloom.

While Russian space accomplishments have captured the imagination of the world, the United States hasn't been entirely devoid of successes in the space field.

THE LAUNCHING of our first spaceman in full glare of a watching world has left no doubt of its success and has proven that the land of the free has not lost all its vigor and still is the home of the brave.

The Russians do not have strikes at their missile bases, neither do they have laws that guarantee them the right to strike.

Lower Issues Tips

Steps Suggested
In Insect Control

LISBON — Floyd Lower, county extension agent in agriculture, has received recommendations for control of insects in the family garden from extension entomologists at Ohio State University.

The materials suggested can be used as dust or spray, with directions for use given on the insecticide labels. The controls are: Snapbeans — Attacked by Mexican bean beetle (orange slug or big orange lady beetle with many spots), leafhoppers and bean leaf beetles. Insecticides to use are Sevin, a combination of methoxychlor and malathion, or Rontene.

BEETS — Flea beetles eat holes in young leaves. Use Methoxychlor, malathion or Sevin.

Carrots — Leafhoppers. Use methoxychlor, malathion, or Sevin.

Lettuce (loose leaf, or head): Cabbage looper (a green caterpillar), leafhopper. Use a combination of methoxychlor and malathion. Use insecticide at first sign of injury because insecticides do not give good control of large looper.

Cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower — Cabbage worm and cabbage looper (both green caterpillars), aphids. Use combination of methoxychlor and malathion. Add about one tablespoon of household detergent to each gallon of spray in order to wet cabbage leaves.

ONIONS — Thrips rasp white streaks on leaves and hide in base of leaves. Use methoxychlor and malathion and be sure to add detergent to spray in order to wet leaves.

Cucumbers, melons, squash and pumpkin-striped cucumber: Beetles feed under plants come through ground. This beetle and the spotted cucumber beetle and aphids also cause later injury. Spray preventatively once a week with methoxychlor and malathion. Use wettable powder formulation only as two or three spraying with an oil emulsion formulation can kill the leaves.

Sweet corn — Flea beetles eat holes when corn is just a few inches tall and spread a bacterial disease. Use methoxychlor, or DDT, even before corn is knee-high corn borer may make ragged pin holes in the leaves. Use three or four sprayings five days apart of DDT or Sevin.

TOMATOES — Flea beetle attacks soon after transplanting and opens the way for certain diseases. Use either methoxychlor, malathion, or Sevin. After fruits form, protect them against fruit worm by a combination of methoxychlor and malathion, which protects against aphids build-up too.

Sevin will be offered for the first time this year in small packages. Methoxychlor and malathion can be bought separately, or are available in ready-to-use mixtures. They also can be bought ready mixed capstan for control of both insects and diseases. The same mixture of malathion, methoxychlor and capstan is recommended for backyard fruit gardens and for flowers and ornamentals. This mixture can be used on all garden vegetables except that DDT or Sevin are more effective for corn borer in sweet corn.

ALFALFA — Weevil adults have been found in a number of Ohio counties including Columbiana County, according to the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station.

Eggs hatch in from 7 to 14 days and larvae feed from three to four weeks on alfalfa leaves. Farmers should check their alfalfa fields frequently during the next month to determine whether the insect is present, according to Lower.

The newly hatched larvae are yellow except for a shining black head. They feed within the plant tips and on the upper leaves of alfalfa, open and then on the lower foliage, skeletonizing the leaves. Damaged leaves dry rapidly and the field takes on a grayish to whitish cast.

When fully grown, the larvae are about three-eighths inches long and are green with brown heads. They have a wide white stripe running down the middle of their heads parallel to faint white stripes on either side.

THE ADULTS are snout beetles and are about three sixteenths inch long.

Several insecticides may be used to control the insects. Information on the insecticide and the dosage can be obtained at the county extension office in Lisbon.

A black stem disease of alfalfa is quite prevalent in Ohio this year, according to B. F. Janson, Ohio State University. This is very destructive during cold wet springs.

The disease appears as dark brown to black lesions on the stem and petioles. Small brown irregularly-shaped spots are produced on the leaves by this fungus. Young shoots may be killed.

There is no satisfactory control measure, but it is recommended alfalfa fields be rotated and that the first cutting made as early as possible without reducing the yields of subsequent cuttings.

"It is not the lack of opportunity, but lack of the knowledge of what to do with all the opportunities which leads to frustration and the dead end of discontent," she said.

Virginia State Police from Weirton were citing the operator of another Chester tavern on a similar charge.

He is Carl Amedeo of Pat's Tavern, who is scheduled for a hearing Wednesday at 10 a. m. before Squire John D. Herron of New Cumberland. Amedeo is also charged with operation of a lottery — a punchboard — the squire said.

Hearings for the two women were held before Squire Allison instead of Mayor Ray Collins because the Chester city ordinance does not distinguish between Eastern Standard Time and Eastern Daylight Time in information on legal Sunday hours.

The legal opening hour on Sunday is 1 p. m. for taverns in West Virginia, which operates on standard time. Mayor Collins conferred with Atty. Ruth Cox Turner, city solicitor, and the cases were taken before Squire Allison, who serves Grant District of Hancock County.

The licensees of the two taverns where the waitresses were cited are John Capous of George's Restaurant and Catherine Keller of the 500 Bar. Both waitresses pleaded guilty.

Meanwhile, Squire Herron Monday fined Johnny Exharos of Johnny's place near Weirton $100 and costs for dispensing beer before the 1 p. m. opening hour and Nicholas Hren, licensee, $100 and costs on a charge of possession of alcoholic liquors on licensed premises. They were cited about noon Sunday by West Virginia State Police.

Sabbath Sales Hit

Supreme Court Upholds
Sunday Blue Law Curbs

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court today upheld constitutionality of Sunday blue laws.

Chief Justice Warren delivered the court's decision.

The tribunal ruled in cases specifically applying to blue laws of Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Blue laws, which restrict Sunday activities in many states, originated in colonial America to compel observance of the Sabbath.

Lawyers attacking the statutes said they have become "a lethal weapon in the economic war of competition" among retailers. The lawyers also argued the laws were religious statutes, enforcement of which violated the U.S. Constitution.

The advent of the Sunday supermarket, the super-drug store, and giant discount emporiums in suburbs and along major highways brought vigorous complaints from downtown business interests, along with demands for enforcement of Sunday closing laws.

Some church organizations also sought stricter enforcement of the laws, while some orthodox Jews and Seventh Day Adventists who observe Saturday as the Sabbath opposed what was termed interference in religion.

A brief submitted to the high court by the Synagogue Council of American and the National Community Relations Advisory Council asked that all blue laws be declared unconstitutional. The brief said organizations connected with the two councils had as members an overwhelming majority of Americans affiliated with Jewish organizations.

The Supreme Court upheld Sunday closing laws in decisions in the last century. Those decisions were based on a "day of rest" doctrine which held the laws were essentially civil rather than religious in nature.

In recent years the court has rejected various appeals challenging blue laws. It said no substantial federal question was presented.

Another blue law appeal was by eight employees of a corporation who worked in a branch highway store in Anne Arundel County, Md.

Lower Issues Tips

Steps Suggested
In Insect Control

LISBON — Floyd Lower, county extension agent in agriculture, has received recommendations for control of insects in the family garden from extension entomologists at Ohio State University.

The materials suggested can be used as dust or spray, with directions for use given on the insecticide labels. The controls are: Snapbeans — Attacked by Mexican bean beetle (orange slug or big orange lady beetle with many spots), leafhoppers and bean leaf beetle. Insecticides to use are Sevin, a combination of methoxychlor and malathion, or Ronteneone.

BEETS — Flea beetles eat holes in young leaves. Use methoxychlor, malathion or Sevin.

Carrots — Leafhoppers. Use methoxychlor, malathion, or Sevin. Lettuce (loose leaf, or head): Cabbage looper (a green caterpillar), leafhopper. Use a combination of methoxychlor and malathion. Use insecticide at first sign of injury because insecticides do not give good control of large looper.

Cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, cauliflower — Cabbage worm and cabbage looper (both green caterpillars), aphids. Use combination of methoxychlor and malathion. Add about one tablespoonful of household detergent to each gallon of spray in order to wet cabbage leaves.

ONIONS — Thrips rasp white streaks on leaves and hide in base of leaves. Use methoxychlor and malathion and be sure to add detergent to spray in order to wet leaves.

Cucumbers, melons, squash and pumpkin-striped cucumber: Beetles feed soon after plants come through ground. This beetle and the spotted cucumber beetle and aphids also cause later injury. Spray preventatively once a week with methoxychlor and malathion. Use wettable powder formulation only two or three sprayings with an oil emulsion formulation can kill the leaves.

Sweet corn — Flea beetles eat holes when corn is just a few inches tall and spread a bacterial disease. Use methoxychlor, or DDT, even before corn is knee-high corn borer may make ragged pin holes in the leaves. Use three or four sprayings five days apart of DDT or Sevin.

TOMATOES — Flea beetle attacks soon after transplanting and opens the way for certain diseases. Use either methoxychlor, malathion, or Sevin. After fruits form, protect them against fruit worm by a combination of methoxychlor and malathion, which protects against aphids build-up too.

Sevin will be offered for the first time this year in small packages. Methoxychlor and malathion can be bought separately, or are available in ready-to-use mixtures. They also can be bought ready mixed for control of both insects and diseases. The same mixture of malathion, methoxychlor and captan is recommended for backyard fruit gardens and for flowers and ornamentals. This mixture can be used on all garden vegetables except that DDT or Sevin are more effective for corn borer in sweet corn.

ALFALFA WEEVIL adults have been found in a number of Ohio counties including Columbiana County, according to the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station. Eggs hatch in from 7 to 14 days and larvae feed from three to four weeks on alfalfa leaves.

Farmers should check their alfalfa fields frequently during the next month to determine whether the insect is present, according to Lower. The newly-hatched larvae are yellow except for a shining black head. They feed within the plant tips and on the upper leaves as they open and then on the lower foliage, skeletonizing the leaves. Damaged leaves dry rapidly and the field takes on a grayish to whitish cast.

When fully grown, the larvae are about three-eighths inches long and are green with brown heads. They have a wide white stripe running down the middle of their heads parallel to faint white stripes on either side.

THE ADULTS are snout beetles and are about three sixteenths inch long. Several insecticides may be used to control the insects. Information on the insecticide and the dosage can be obtained at the county extension office in Lisbon. A black stem disease of alfalfa is quite prevalent in Ohio this year, according to B. F. Janson, Ohio State University. This is very destructive during cold wet springs.

The disease appears as dark brown to black lesions on the stem and petioles. Small brown irregularly-shaped spots are produced on the leaves by this fungus. Young shoots may be killed. There is no satisfactory control measure, but it is recommended alfalfa fields be rotated and that the first cutting made as early as possible without reducing the yields of subsequent cuttings.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Words come easily to you—particularly, "Stay together for the sake of the children." I say "phooey."

Since experts agree that a couple should not adopt a child to keep a marriage together, why should their own children be used for the same purpose?

I speak from a double-pronged experience. My mother took years of abuse from my father. She would have been much happier if she had left him and remarried a good man who appreciated her fine qualities.

My husband spent several years ignoring me and taking an active part in every outside activity known to man. He knew I'd cover for him, stick close to the children and do his job as well as mine. And I did.

Now I'm ignoring him and he's begging me to be a sweetheart again. Well, the hurt is too deep. A man can't kick a woman around for years and then when he's worn out from running around, expect her to develop amnesia.

I wish now I'd left him 15 years ago. The children were not fooled. Why don't you print this one—or would certain church groups have you fired?—PREMATURELY GRAY.

Dear Gray: Thanks for another point of view.

Sad 16-Year-Old

Dear Ann: I'm a sad 16-year-old. The fellow I have been crazy about since grade school always seemed to be going steady with other girls so he never asked me out.

Last week he called for a Saturday night movie date and I said he and J. had broken up. I was thrilled.

When we got to the movie it was crowded and we had to sit pretty close to the front. Half way through the movie he said, "Holy cow—there's J. over there with Ted!" Then he slumped down in his seat until he was practically on the floor.

The minute the movie ended he rushed me out to a chop suey joint I never heard of before to make sure he wouldn't see anyone he knew.

When I got home I cried. My mother said I was fool to have accepted the date in the first place. Was I?—HUMILIATED.

Cousin Discounted

Dear Ann: My husband's cousin is employed by a construction company. We decided to build an addition to our home last spring and this cousin offered to help us with the project. His estimate seemed fair.

After the project was completed his bill was almost twice the amount of the estimate. I blew up. My husband told me that it was still cheaper than we could have had it done by someone else. Now we want to have a cement wall built around our property. This time my husband and his brother are doing the work but my husband asked this same miserable cousin to help him get the materials at a cheaper price. I'm against having him in the act again. My husband and I are really at war over this. Who is right?—CEMENT MIXER.

Dear Mixer: No one ever wins an argument like this. If your husband wants to get the materials through his cousin, let him. If he gets rooked again he may learn his lesson. Regardless of how it turns out, is it worth war?

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Teen-Agers Are Very Big Spenders

Advertisers and retail businesses know that the teenager is a bigger and bigger buyer. With his growing tyranny over his parents, he is a liberal, even lavish, spender.

According to a recent survey by Seventeen magazine, charge accounts by teen-agers doubled since 1959. Not Dr. Garry Meyers many stores question opening a charge account with a teen-ager or take the trouble to get his parents' approval. They know that a letter to the parent will easily take care of a delinquent account. Keeping up with the Joneses is naturally stoniest in the teens, the teen-agers are rapidly becoming rulers of the roost. By the time the child is in his teens, not many parents have the courage to say No, and most couldn't make their word good if they did.

THIS PARENTAL surrender, regardless of financial sacrifice, is but one of the products of the prevalence of excessive permissiveness in the child's early years which struck our nation some 30 or 40 years ago.

Why should we expect a parent to say No with effect to his teen-ager who hadn't been practiced in respecting the little word from the time he was a mere tot in the nursery?

Seeing what is happening through the tyranny of teenagers today, a few parents are seriously considering what they might do now to train and guide this little child not to be a tyrant by and by in his teens. A few of them believe they should begin now and continually train their tot to respect the little word No and should strictly limit what he may do and have.

Those who so believe should consider the following: Long before your baby can understand, discipline yourself to limit what he may have and do. Resolve to limit him to what you are sure is good for him.

First say No to yourself long before you begin to say No to him.

ESPECIALLY with the first baby, you parents, regardless of your income, tend to lavish expensive clothes and playthings on him; as he grows older you incline to spend still more liberally. As soon as he is able to spend money you are tempted to give him too much and, as he grows older and clamors for more, to rapidly increase this amount of money.

Pressures from him and your desire to have him keep up with the Joneses, result in his having far more money to spend than is good for him. How easy for him to demand still more and get more as he grows older!

See that he does not buy things on credit at the store near his school. Let him not begin a charge account, even in his teens, until you have proof of his reasonable frugality and responsibility with money.

My bulletins, "Allowances" and "How to Teach Child Meaning of No," may be had by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

How Can I?

By ANNE ASHLEY

Q. How can I determine the exact spot or spots to plane or sand down on a door that keeps sticking?

A. Rub some chalk along the door jamb, then close the door. The high spots on your door edge that make paring off will rub on the chalk and are marked for your attention. Work carefully, and repeat as needed.

Q. How can I keep flies and other insects out of my freshly-applied paint jobs outside?

A. If you'll add one or two teaspoonfuls of oil of citronella or oil of wintergreen to each gallon of your paint, the odor of these oils will usually make the insects keep their distance.

Q. How can I remove mustard stains from linens?

A. By washing in hot water and suds, then rinsing in warm water.

Wellsville's Elks Will Be Host For Joint Lodge Rite

Wellsville Elks Lodge 1040 will serve as host for a joint Flag Day ceremony to be held Wednesday, June 14, with East Liverpool Lodge 258.

Mervyle Kenney, exalted ruler of the Wellsville lodge, and Samuel Webber, exalted ruler of Lodge 258, said the services will be at 8 p.m.

The ceremony is open to the public and the two invited all citizens to join the Elks "in a patriotic and spiritually inspired day of re-dedication to our flag and the great American heritage of freedom which it represents—a freedom which we hope all mankind will enjoy."

Sidney Young and Charles R. Donaldson are serving as co-chairmen of a committee named to plan the program.

Webber and Kenney said the two lodges will be among more than 1,950 Elks lodges in all parts of the country paying tribute to the flag on the 14th anniversary of its adoption by the Continental Congress June 14, 1777. The Elks have been observing Flag Day since 1908.

U.S. Seeks Curb On Pacifists At Submarine Base

LONDON (AP)—The U.S. Navy is reported to have asked the British government for extra security measures to protect its Polaris submarine base in Scotland's Holy Loch against harassment by pacifist demonstrators.

Well-placed sources said Monday the almost continuous pacifist campaign has aroused deep concern among British and American authorities.

But there was no confirmation for a London newspaper claim that withdrawal of the base ship Proteus from Scottish waters is under consideration.

"There are no changes in the program for maintaining the anchorage at Holy Loch in accordance with agreements reached between the British and American governments," said a U.S. Navy spokesman.

Anxiety about the anti-Polaris campaign reached a new pitch a weekend ago when demonstrators staged sitdown protests outside pier gates and tried to board the Proteus.

The British government is known to be anxious to convince the American public that only a small minority of Britons oppose the base.

Good Posture Helps Streamline Figure

Some girls settle for a slumped figure before they are twenty.

Teenagers, grab hold of this streamlining idea... your style is the way you carry your ribcage.

By lifting the ribcage, you lift the weight off the middle of your figure and slim the waist.

Understand a bit about the muscle attachment and you'll see how the up-pull, rightly centered, is bound to be streamlining. The uplift muscles of the abdomen originate in the pelvic girdle and attach to the ribcage near the sternum, or breastbone. Start the uplift with the lower abdominal muscles and carry through to the stomach... pull up-and-in. Keep shoulders relaxed... the muscle attachment is not at the shoulders.

BY THE WAY, the muscles that pad the hips are not just to sit on. They have the important function of helping to keep your pelvic girdle centered. So as you pull up-and-in with the girdle muscles, pull slightly down-and-under with the big hip muscles.

If you can't hold this posture, toning exercises are needed. Try this test exercise.

Position: Stand on your knees and stretch arms up overhead, hands clasped.

Movement: Holding the up-stretch, bend to the right side.

as you sit down to the left side of your legs. Still holding the stretch, lift with the girdle muscles and pull up to your knees. Now bend to the left as you sit down to the right.

I'll bet you can't do it! The lifting is done by the sheer strength of the girdle muscles. At any rate, start with an easier exercise daily for a week, then try the test exercise again.

Position: Standing on knees, sit back on heels. Have arms at sides, shoulder level. Pull up and in snugly with girdle muscles.

Still keeping a firm grip on the middle muscles, return to starting position and bend to the left side slowly. That's easy! To make the abdominal muscles really work, add a lift.

AS YOU BEND to the right side, pull up to lift hips slightly off heels and stretch with left hand clear to fingertips. That's streamlining. Repeat a dozen times, alternating sides.

Do this one exercise daily and in a week or two, you'll be on your way to a smooth figure. With strong girdle muscles, it's easy to pull out of a slump.

Send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for "Get A Lift With Posture." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of this newspaper. Postcard requests cannot be answered.

Newsman Recalls Stay

Dirt, Cold, Terror Mark Notorious Cuban Prison

(AP correspondent Robert Berrellez during two years in Cuba became a sort of authority on Fidel Castro's most famous prison, La Cabaña. He wound up there as a prisoner, but finally was released to return to the United States. Here is his description of this prison whose name strikes terror in many Cuban hearts.)

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
NEW YORK (AP)—A popular Spanish dish is paella—a concoction of rice, chicken, seafood, peppers and other things that defies the martini in the number of ways it can be made.

In Havana's La Cabaña Prison, the inmates—I among them—jokingly referred to the diet of rice and black beans as paella La Cabaña. This, however, was a sort of long-playing paella that went on for every one of the miserable 25 days of my detention.

Once in a while, a shred of beef or ham somehow would find its way into the mixture. The food was the most palatable of the conditions at the ancient fortress prison. Filth, dampness, cold and forbiddingly grim surroundings were the lot of the 1,800 in Cabaña with me.

I know La Cabaña well. My first assignment after reaching Havana in mid-January 1959 was to go to the prison to interview Maj. Jesus Sosa Blanco, accused by Fidel Castro of more than 100 murders. He was executed the same month.

I went there many times thereafter to interview other so-called war criminals and had no difficulties coming and going. There was no suggestion then that my career as a correspondent in Havana was to end with detention in the same prison.

The original fortress is surrounded by deep, dry, grassy moats. Traffic feeds over narrow bridges, some covered.

The prison itself is a tiny triangular space in one corner of the original fort. Deep vaults apparently used by the Spanish military to store food and wine were converted into prison cells much later.

The vaults run under nearly six feet of porous concrete. I was told this was intended to let rain water seep through the walls slowly. The ever present breeze from the ocean about a mile away combines with the damp walls to create a primitive air conditioning. The prison is cool in the steamy tropical daytime heat, and intensely cold at night.

as you sit down to the left side of your legs. Still holding the stretch, lift with the girdle muscles and pull up to your knees. Now bend to the left as you sit down to the right.

I'll bet you can't do it! The lifting is done by the sheer strength of the girdle muscles. At any rate, start with an easier exercise daily for a week, then try the test exercise again.

Position: Standing on knees, sit back on heels. Have arms out at sides, shoulder level. Pull up-and-in snugly with girdle muscles.

NAB President's Appeal

Is the leadership of LeRoy Collins, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, about to be repudiated by some industry men who regard him more as a foe than friend?

In trade circles, where Collins' stern maiden address to the full membership of the NAB is still a prime conversation piece, there is uneasiness over his espousal of true professional behavior on the part of broadcasters, of putting integrity above profit.

Like the critics of TV, the former governor of Florida sees plenty of room for improvement, and it is apparent that not all tradesmen appreciate having this told to them by one of their own.

IT IS NOT ONLY apparent, it also is well known by Mr. Collins, who says about those rumbles emanating from the ranks:

"Certainly there were bound to be broadcasters offended by some of the things I said. I didn't expect all of them would concur. But I believe I have the support of the great majority."

"As for anything that may be said about my having been appointed head of NAB mainly to act as front man or to give the industry an image, well — people who know me know I wouldn't be part of anything like that."

"I accepted this position to do a job. I believe in broadcasting. I feel it has a great potential as a public service medium. And I think broadcasting is on its way to substantial improvement. If I felt otherwise, if I felt that the majority of broadcasters did not earnestly want improvement, if I felt it was a lost cause, I would be discouraged. I would sooner quit than continue in this position."

RECENTLY he told broadcasters:

"If you do not approve of the courses I have outlined for NAB, I want you to say so. And now is the proper time. If you do approve, I want your support — your active support, not just your acquiescence."

"If you want someone gently to paddle NAB's boat into the stagnant pockets of still water, then you do not want me."

Collins' resignation could have a shattering effect on the industry if it came about. In Washington circles it would be accepted as proof that broadcasters do not want to police their own ranks or implement their own codes.

IF A SUBSTANTIAL number of broadcasters were to reject Collins and his high-minded hopes for the industry, it goes without saying that the industry would be facial with stringent government regulation in the future.

Collins says as of now there's no cause for such speculation since he is not "aware" of any concerted movement to unseat him or to challenge his leadership.

For the sake of viewers, as well as the industry, may his information be correct.

NBC TESTED a five-minute children's news program on the "Family Show" and announced victorious results. To date, 300 letters have come in asking for more.

It is now definite that Marilyn Monroe will star in Somerset Maugham's "Rain" on NBC in the early fall.

"Way Out" will be just that on July 14 when CBS will fill the gap with film reruns.

Disgust with TV programs in England has caused viewers to cut their TV time drastically while audiences for radio have increased 2 million in the past year.

It is difficult to be critical of all the crime and violence on television when one takes account of the all-time best sellers in literature between 1895 and 1955. According to Alice Payne Hackett's "60 Years of Best Sellers," "15 best sellers in this country included 9 novels, 3 inspirational books, 2 cookbooks and 1 book on baby care. Of the nine novels that made this best seller list, seven were by Mickey Spillane!"

Large Supply To Hold Down Fryer Prices

Look for poultry fryers to continue to be featured at low prices in markets for awhile yet, Richard Skinner, marketing agent with the Co-operative Extension Service in Canfield, suggested today.

Supplies of broiler-fryers coming to market now are greater than normal and prices are forced down, even though this is the time of year when the demand is the greatest for poultry fryers, he said. The demand is greatest during the spring months because of chicken being an ideal meat to barbecue.

It will be another 10 days to two weeks before local berries are on the markets, providing recent extreme cold weather does not freeze them out. The berries that are now on the market are coming from Tennessee, Virginia and New Jersey. The quality of local berries will be superior to what is now on the market because local berries reach the market sooner after harvesting.

Other good buys on local fruit counters are grapefruit, bananas and — on some markets — pineapples. Grapefruit is nearing the end of its season and banana supplies will soon begin to decrease. Pineapple should be plentiful on the market until about mid-June.

There are five different types of potatoes available on local markets, all of them in generous amounts. The first major division is between old crop potatoes and new crop potatoes.

Generally, new crop potatoes have thinner skins, contain more moisture and less solids, mostly starch and minerals. But there are two kinds of new potatoes — red and white. The new red potatoes are considered ideal for potato salad. The new long Whites, as the potato experts call them, are excellent for French frying and as the season progresses, they'll do well for baking.

The three kinds of old crop potatoes are good for almost any type of cooking. The long russet potatoes are famous for baking, but they're also tops for French frying. Unless you want potatoes for potato salad or French fry, the old crop potatoes are the better buy.

Movie Screened For Cubs' Group

A movie of last year's Christmas party was screened when Cub Pack 137 of Pughmton met Saturday night with John Johnston of State Route 2, cubmaster. About 45 attended.

The entertainment also included a skit on "Indians" by Den 4, with Mrs. William Oyster, den mother, in charge. Each den displayed models of Indian villages.

Plans were made to sell moth cakes as a fund-raising project. Johnston explained the pack's insurance policy.

Recipients of awards included Sheldon McElfresh, bear badge with two silver arrows and two gold arrows; Butch McCoy, bear badge and dinner badge for Den 1; Roger Westfall, silver arrow; Don Oyster and Danny Oyster, gold arrows; Danny Rosich, wolf badge and gold arrow, and Mrs. Dallas Blake and Mrs. Arlie Westfall, den mother pins. Den Rosich also received a dinner badge for Den 4.

Joseph White was installed as chief of Den 4. Den 3 conducted the opening under Mrs. Johnston, den mother. Den 1 presented the closing skit.

A Wiener roast followed. The pack visited the jet base near Greater Pittsburgh Airport Saturday.

List Spending For Primary

Nine more candidates in the May 2 primaries have certified their campaign expenses in sworn statements to the County Election Board.

John A. Melvin, who was defeated for Democratic renomination as a councilman-at-large in East Liverpool, listed $31 in expenses.

Four Wellsville candidates also filed the statements.

Meryle D. Kenney, Republican candidate for Wellsville Council, said he spent $41.92, while Aguin Bowling, who won renomination on the GOP ticket for an at-large post, reported expenditures of $28.88.

Byron Q. Carter, who sought an at-large seat, listed expenses of $20, while Clarence T. Cartwright said he had no expenses in winning renomination on the Democratic slate.

Howard L. Moore, a Republican candidate for Council in East Palestine, said he spent $1 while Charles W. Kelley, who asked the GOP nomination for the Fourth Ward post, said he had no expenses.

Ralph K. Zimmerman, a GOP candidate for the Fourth Ward seat in Salem, reported $2.40 in expenses while Victor P. Billet, a Democratic candidate for the Board of Public Affairs in Leetonia, said he spent nothing.

The expense statements are required of all candidates whether successful or not, and from any committees that supported or opposed any candidate or issue. The law forbids the Election Board from issuing a certificate of nomination to a candidate who fails to file an expense report. Any candidate who fails to file also is barred from seeking public office again for five years.

The deadline for submitting the reports is June 16 at 4 p. m.

Meanwhile, two more candidates have filed for election on a non-partisan ticket at the Nov. 7 general election.

Charles J. Gause and J. M. Ridgeway both filed for Hanover Township trustee.

Stamp Collecting Hobby Pursued By 10 Million

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 10 million American investors are just pursuing a hobby. It's that pastime of both the young and the old, stamp collecting.

Perhaps an additional million take a real investor's view. Well chosen stamps have a record of greater value over the years than most deals in the stock market, are a tried hedge against inflation, enjoy an international market and are a ready source of funds in a crisis.

The stamp collecting world currently is being deluged with new issues. Many are from the fledgling nations emerging so rapidly and some are aimed more or less frankly at raising revenue from the growing number of collectors in the world.

Some of the price increases since World War II have been striking. A U.S. airmail stamp collected bringing $102.81 in 1945 is listed in the 1960 Scott Catalogue, published by Esquire, Inc., as $282.63.

Price rises of as much as 1,400 per cent are recorded in the list. But like all investments, some are mavericks. And a few have declined in value, the biggest drop noted being 63 per cent. The sudden appearance on the market of a previously unknown supply can do the trick.

NAB President's Appeal

Is the leadership of LeRoy Collins, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, about to be repudiated by some industry men who regard him more as foe than friend?

In trade circles, where Collins' stern maiden address to the full membership of the NAB is still a prime conversation piece, there is uneasiness over his espousal of true professional behavior on the part of broadcasters, of putting integrity above profit.

Like the critics of TV, the former governor of Florida sees plenty of room for improvement, and it is apparent that not all tradesmen appreciate having this told to them by one of their own.

IT IS NOT ONLY apparent, it also is well known by Mr. Collins, who says about those rumbles emanating from the ranks:

"Certainly there were bound to be broadcasters offended by some of the things I said. I didn't expect all of them would concur. But I believe I have the support of the great majority."

"As for anything that may be said about my having been appointed head of NAB mainly to act as front man or to give the industry an image, well — people who know me know I wouldn't be part of anything like that."

"I accepted this position to do a job. I believe in broadcasting. I feel it has a great potential as a public service medium. And I think broadcasting is on its way to substantial improvement. If I felt otherwise, if I felt that the majority of broadcasters did not earnestly want improvement, if I felt it was a lost cause, I would be discouraged. I would sooner quit than continue in this position."

RECENTLY he told broadcasters:

"If you do not approve of the courses I have outlined for NAB, I want you to say so. And now is the proper time. If you do approve, I want your support — your active support, not just your acquiescence."

"If you want someone gently to paddle NAB's boat into the stagnant pockets of still water, then you do not want me."

Collins' resignation could have a shattering effect on the industry if it came about. In Washington circles it would be accepted as proof that broadcasters do not want to police their own ranks or implement their own codes.

IF A SUBSTANTIAL number of broadcasters were to reject Collins and his high-minded hopes for the industry, it goes without saying that the industry would be faceted with stringent government regulation in the future. Collins says as of now there's no cause for such speculation since he is not "aware" of any concerted movement to unseat him or to challenge his leadership.

For the sake of viewers, as well as the industry, may his information be correct.

NBC TESTED a five-minute children's news program on the "Family Show" and announced victorious results. To date, 300 letters have come in asking for more.

It is now definite that Marilyn Monroe will star in Somerset Maugham's "Rain" on NBC in the early fall.

"Way Out" will be just that on July 14 when CBS will fill the gap with film reruns.

Disgust with TV programs in England has caused viewers to cut their TV time drastically while audiences for radio have increased 2 million in the past year.

It is difficult to be critical of all the crime and violence on television when one takes account of the all-time best sellers in literature between 1895 and 1955. According to Alice Payne Hackett's "60 Years of Best Sellers," 15 best sellers in this country included 9 novels, 3 inspirational books, 2 cookbooks and 1 book on baby care. Of the nine novels that made this best seller list, seven were by Mickey Spillane.

Large Supply To Hold Down Fryer Prices

Look for poultry fryers to continue to be featured at low prices in markets for awhile yet, Richard Skinner, marketing agent with the Co-operative Extension Service in Canfield, suggested today.

Supplies of broiler-fryers coming to market now are greater than normal and prices are forced down, even though this is the time of year when the demand is the greatest for poultry fryers, he said. The demand is greatest during the spring months because of chicken being an ideal meat to barbecue.

It will be another 10 days to two weeks before local berries are on the markets, providing recent extreme cold weather does not freeze them out. The berries that are now on the market are coming from Tennessee, Virginia and New Jersey. The quality of local berries will be superior to what is now on the market because local berries reach the market sooner after harvesting.

Other good buys on local fruit counters are grapefruit, bananas and — on some markets — pineapples. Grapefruit is nearing the end of its season and banana supplies will soon begin to decrease. Pineapple should be plentiful on the market until about mid-June.

There are five different types of potatoes available on local markets, all of them in generous amounts. The first major division is between old crop potatoes and new crop potatoes.

Generally, new crop potatoes have thinner skins, contain more moisture and less solids, mostly starch and minerals. But there are two kinds of new potatoes — red and white. The new red potatoes are considered ideal for potato salad. The new long Whites, as the potato experts call them, are excellent for French frying and as the season progresses, they'll do well for baking.

The three kinds of old crop potatoes are good for almost any type of cooking. The long russet potatoes are famous for baking, but they're also tops for French frying. Unless you want potatoes for potato salad or French frying, the old crop potatoes are the better buy.

Movie Screened For Cub's Group

A movie of last year's Christmas party was screened when Cub Pack 137 of Pughtown met Saturday night with John Johnston of State Route 2, cubmaster. About 45 attended.

The entertainment also included a skit on "Indians" by Den 4, with Mrs. William Oyster, den mother, in charge. Each den displayed models of Indian villages. Plans were made to sell moth cakes as a fund-raising project. Johnston explained the pack's insurance policy.

Recipients of awards included Sheldon McElfresh, bear badge with two silver arrows and two gold arrows; Butch McCoy, bear badge and dinner badge for Den 1; Roger Westfall, silver arrow; Don Oyster and Danny Oyster, gold arrows; Danny Rosich, wolf badge and gold arrow, and Mrs. Dallas Blake and Mrs. Arlie Westfall, den mother pins. Dan Rosich also received a dinner badge for Den 4.

Joseph White was installed as chief of Den 4. Den 3 conducted the opening under Mrs. Johnston, den mother. Den 1 presented the closing skit.

A winner roast followed. The pack visited the jet base near Greater Pittsburgh Airport Saturday.

Four Wellsville candidates also filed the statements.

500 Race Seen Wide Open On Golden Anniversary

Good Weather Promised As Field Of 33 Goes To Starting Line

By JERRY LISK Associated Press Sports Writer INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The golden anniversary 500-mile Memorial Day auto race Tuesday looms as the most wide-open in this historic carnival of speed and carnage. And it apparently will be blessed with its fabulous weather luck.

The forecast is for generally fair weather, ranging up to 75 degrees — perfect for a record-breaking assault by 33 nifty drivers, including three former winners and eight talented rookies headed by world road racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia.

Since Ray Harroun won the inaugural 1911 race by whipping his Marmon Wasp to a 74.59 mile-per-hour victory, rain has marred only three races. The 1915 race was postponed from Saturday to Monday, the only weather-caused delay in the motor classic's history.

The 1926 race was stopped by rain at 400 miles with Frank Lockhart the winner. In 1950, a quit was called at 345 miles with the checkered flag going to Johnny Parsons.

Most important, propitious weather will send more than 200,000 picnic-spirited folk into this unique, 550-acre racing plant for some 3½ hours of gazing at a contest in which death can strike at any moment in the roaring 200 laps around the 2½-mile brick and asphalt course.

Some 53 persons—drivers, mechanics and spectators — have died at the track, the latest victim being a prime favorite to win the 1961 race, veteran Tony Bettenhausen, killed in a May 11 practice spin.

Sam Hanks, 1957 500 winner and now speedway racing director, predicted "a real helmet dash" when the 33 carefully-groomed racers roar into action at noon (East Liverpool time) today after speedway owner Tony Hulman cranks up the field with his traditional "Gentlemen, start your engines" salutation.

"Helmet dash" is a term applied to spring races.

"I think five or six drivers have an equal chance of winning," said Hanks. "I won't put anybody on the spot, but with veterans like Rodger Ward, Jim Rathmann and Eddie Sachs, not to mention Jim Hurtubise, Parnelli Jones and Eddie Johnson, there has got to be a wide open race."

Rathmann won last year's 500 with a record-breaking 138.767 m.p.h., but he was only some 12 seconds ahead of Ward, the 1959 winner. The third returning champion is 1952 winner Troy Ruttman, a heavy-footed terror.

Sachs holds the pole-car position in the 11-row lineup of three abreast cars with the best qualifying time of 147.481 m.p.h.

Although Brabham has been in the spotlight in his 500 debut driving a British Cooper-Climax, described as a "little jewel" by birds, Jones also has made a strong impression as a speedway rookie.

A foreigner has not won the 500 since the Italian-born Englishman, Dario Resta, triumphed 45 years ago, taking the 1916 race in his Peugeot at 84 m.p.h.

UCLA Cager Admits Being Approached

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA said Monday a star guard on its basketball team had been approached by a contact man for gamblers.

Athletic Director Wilbur Johns said the player, Ron Lawson, did not cooperate with gamblers but nonetheless failed to report the approach.

Lawson, Johns said, quit school Monday.

The sports world has been rocked recently by allegations that players for Eastern schools cooperated with big money gamblers. This was the first report of such activity in this area.

The investigation now has involved a total of 29 players and 18 schools.

Johns' statement said: "Ron Lawson was requested to appear before the New York Grand Jury last week in connection with its investigation into point shaving by college basketball players."

"Lawson appeared voluntarily. Since his return, he has told us he was approached by a contact man for the gamblers, but that he did not ever shave points in a game."

"Nevertheless, he did not report the approach to our coaches as all of our players are instructed to do, and consequently he has withdrawn from the university."

Lawson reportedly has returned home to Nashville, Tenn.

"It's a very unfortunate thing—very insidious," Johns said. There has been no indication that any other player has been approached by gambler, he added.

Lawson was one of the top three or four scorers on the UCLA squad.

Burbick's Gain Fourth Straight In Little League

In the only Little League game reported by press time, Burbick's defeated Chester Legion, 15-4, Monday for its fourth straight victory in the National Division.

Clashed 14 hits, the winners scored in every inning but the fifth, including an eight-run second frame.

E. Brewer had four hits to lead Burbick's while home runs were hit by Hasala, Golden and Good-ballet. Finely homered for the losers.

P. Berhar picked up the victory and struck out seven Chester batters. The Legion nine collected 10 hits.

A makeup game between Mill-iron's and Golden Star will be played today at 3:30 at Thompson Park field.

3 Share Honors In Country Club Golfing Event

Norman Ankrum, Jay Kinsey and W. J. Hocking Jr., shared honors Sunday in a selective nine-hole event by firing 33's over the Country Club course.

J. B. Probst and C. F. Metz Jr., shot 34's while Dick Heddles-ton captured the second division with a 33.

In Saturday's match play against par with full handicap, R. T. McDaniel finished one up to win the event with Bob Patterson even and Dick Crabbe and Everson Hall one down.

Okey Ludwig was three down in the second division.

A mixed scotch foursome is scheduled for this afternoon with 60 players competing.

Andy Petrick, club pro, said a new men's golf league is being formed and anyone interested may sign up.

2 Directors Hired, New Facilities Set For Thompson Park Program

The hiring of two recreation directors and a broader recreation program at Thompson Park, for people of all ages, has been announced by the Park Board.

Bob Hedmond and Jim Harris, head football coach and basketball coach, respectively, at East Liverpool High School, are the new directors hired to carry out the recreational program.

The directors will be paid $900 each, $1,200 being appropriated by the city and the remainder donations from the Blue and White Nonpareil Club and the Little Potters Basketball League.

Fourteen facilities have been listed for the summer program. They include swimming pool, bathhouse and toilets, wading pool, two baseball diamonds, swings, 250-yard track, sliding boards, picnic tables, fire places, tennis courts, horseshoe pits, shuffle board courts, basketball court and badminton.

One baseball diamond, the track, horseshoe pits and badminton courts are new this year. Judge Louis Tobin, chairman of the board, pointed out.

He emphasized "the program is designed to reach anyone of any age who wishes to participate in some form of athletic recreation at the park."

The running track, located in the lower park west of the swimming pool, will have a 100-yard straightaway for dash events. Work has started on the track and it is expected to be ready soon.

Special events are on the present agenda. In the pool area a swimming and diving meet has been planned, along with toy sailboat regattas.

If enough participants are interested, tournaments will be set up in horseshoes, volleyball, softball and track and field.

The Kiwanis Club sponsored a tennis tournament a year ago and is contemplating another tournament this year. The local Jaycees have set up a track and field meet for July 29 and a track program will be carried out at the park to aid in the training of girls and boys for the countywide meet.

The use and reservation of all park sporting facilities and equipment must be made by contacting Harris at FU. 6-4002 or Hedmond at FU. 5-5032. Anyone interested in forming a league also should contact either one of the directors.

Buc First Baseman Underrated Nelson's Stance At Plate Major's Most Unorthodox

By FRANK ECK AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

He admits he isn't much to look at, in or out of the batter's box, but Glenn (Rocky) Nelson undoubtedly is the most underrated player among the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

When Pirate hitters fall into slumps they need only to call on George Sisler, the former first baseman who twice hit above .400 in the American League. Sisler has worked with all the Buc batters. However, Nelson knows a lot about hitting, too. Some of the Pirates also seek out his advice.

In his two full years with the Pirates, his collective average is .296. He hit .291 in 1959 and .300 last year while platooning at first base with Dick Stuart.

If you never saw Rocky you could spot him in a hurry once he steps into the batter's box. His right or front foot is pointed directly at the pitcher. It's the most unorthodox stance in the big leagues.

"I picked it up in Montreal in 1955," Nelson began. "I used to have trouble with fast balls inside. I figured if I opened up my stance I'd be able to get the bat around so I could pull the ball to right field."

"It was about 293 feet down the line in Montreal — like Brooklyn was. I tried to adopt the stance to fit the ball park."

In Rocky's case it worked wonders. That year he led the International League with .364, hit 37 homers and had 130 runs batted in. Three years later he was back on the beam again after failing a second time both with Brooklyn and St. Louis. He led the International while playing for Toronto, hitting .326 with 43 homers and 120 rbi's.

The Pirates drafted him, making it the second time Pittsburgh took a chance on the Portsmouth, Ohio native. He was the best bargain General Manager Joe L. Brown ever grabbed. He cost $25,000.

"A pretty good first baseman and a real good hitter," says new Washington Manager Mickey Vernon when asked about Rocky. Vernon was a dandy at first and twice led the AL in hitting and was a Pirate player-coach last year.

"When Rocky moved me back from the plate last year the hits began dropping," says Pirate second baseman Bill Mazeroski. "I had been getting hit on the fist a lot. He gave me a better conception of the plate and the strike zone, and I began waiting on the pitches a little bit better. The result was that I hit .298 from mid-July on."

How come Rocky?

"Well, if you get in a hitting rut you've got to move around in the batter's box. That's what I did, and I noticed that Maz kept crowing the plate. I just moved him back."

This spring marks the first time in his career that Nelson will put in a third straight year with the same team. And he began back in 1942 with Johnson City, Tenn. Besides missing out twice with St. Louis and Brooklyn and once previously with the Pirates, Nelson also missed connections with the White Sox and Indians.

But now at 36 he has been accepted as a big leaguer all the way. This despite a .253 career batting average and the fact that he carries the tag Rocky. He earned the nickname the hard way.

Enos Slaughter was the first to call him Rocky. When both were with the Cardinals a medicine ball bounced off Nelson's skull. He never even blinked.

It was Nelson who started the home run barrage against the Yankees in that final 10-9 World Series fiasco in Pittsburgh last October. With two out in the first inning, his two-run homer began the Pirate scoring. In the top of the ninth his lightning stab robbed

Robinson, Hunt Team Up To Give Cincy, 5-1, Win Over Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A three-run homer by Frank Robinson powered rookie right-hander Ken Hunt and the Cincinnati Reds to a 5-1 victory over the National League leading San Francisco Giants Monday.

Robinson's 12th homer of the season, a 400-foot ciout, came in the first inning off loser Mike McCormick, whose record now is 5-3.

Hunt, a big, 22-year-old curve ball artist, who wasn't on the Reds' roster during spring training, won his fifth game. He's lost two.

Hunt allowed seven hits and had Giant runners on base in every inning but the ninth, but he was scored on only in the fifth. Charlie Hiller and Ed Bressoud singled and Hiller scored when Felipe Alou bounced into a fielder's choice.

The Reds jumped on McCormick in the first inning when Ed Kasko walked and V. J. Pinson singled. Robinson then lined his homer to left.

The Reds added a run in the fourth on three consecutive singles. They picked up their final run in the ninth off Stu Miller.

The game was stopped for five minutes in the fifth inning when Pinson and Wally Post collided in short right field while Pinson was catching Jim Marshall's pop fly. Both were knocked down but stayed in the game.

Globemaster, Crozier Battle In Jersey Run

By RALPH BERNSTEIN Associated Press Sports Writer CAMDEN, N.J. (AP) — Do horses develop inferiority complexes or lose heart at frequent frustration? The question, often asked by horsemen could be partially answered today in the $100,000 Jersey Derby at Garden State Park.

The subject of this little psychoanalysis on a horse is Fred W. Hooper's Crozier, whose chief claim to fame is losing close decisions to Carry Back, the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner.

Crozier is one of a field of eight 3-year-olds entered Monday for the second annual Jersey. He's the 7-5 second choice of the track handicapper. Leonard Sasso's Globemaster, runnerup to Carry Back in the Preakness, has been installed an even money favorite for the 1½ mile race.

Others entered are Jacob Sher's Sherlock, Mrs. Ada L. Rice's Try Cash, Robert Lehman's Ambroise, Boncris Farm's Nashua Blue, Braeburn Farm's Jay Fox, and A.J. O'Connell's Dumatate. A crowd of better than 40,000 is expected for this final session of the 25th spring meet.

Jack Price, owner-trainer of Carry Back, has picked Globemaster as an "easy winner" of the Jersey. Price, who skipped the race here to give Carry Back a shot at the final jewel of the triple crown, the Belmont Stakes, asserted: "Crozier is through in my opinion. I think Carry Back has taken the heart out of him. Globemaster is the fresher horse and the distance fits him."

Told of Price's remarks, Chuck Parke, trainer of Crozier, commented, "He (Price) doesn't know my horse as well as I do."

"If Crozier is through, so is Carry Back. Crozier has lost none of his spirit or heart. He's as bright as can be. The races he's lost haven't taken anything out of him, physically or mentally. His flesh has held up."

500 Race Seen Wide Open On Golden Anniversary

Good Weather Promised As Field Of 33 Goes To Starting Line

By JERRY LISKA Associated Press Sports Writer INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The golden anniversary 500-mile Memorial Day auto race Tuesday looms as the most wide-open in this historic carnival of speed and carnage. And it apparently will be blessed with its fabulous weather luck.

The forecast is for generally fair weather, ranging up to 75 degrees — perfect for a record-breaking assault by 33 nifty drivers, including three former winners and eight talented rookies headed by world road racing champion Jack Brabham of Australia.

Since Ray Harroun won the inaugural 1911 race by whipping his Marmon Wasp to a 74.59 mile-per-hour victory, rain has marred only three races. The 1915 race was postponed from Saturday to Monday, the only weather-caused delay in the motor classic's history.

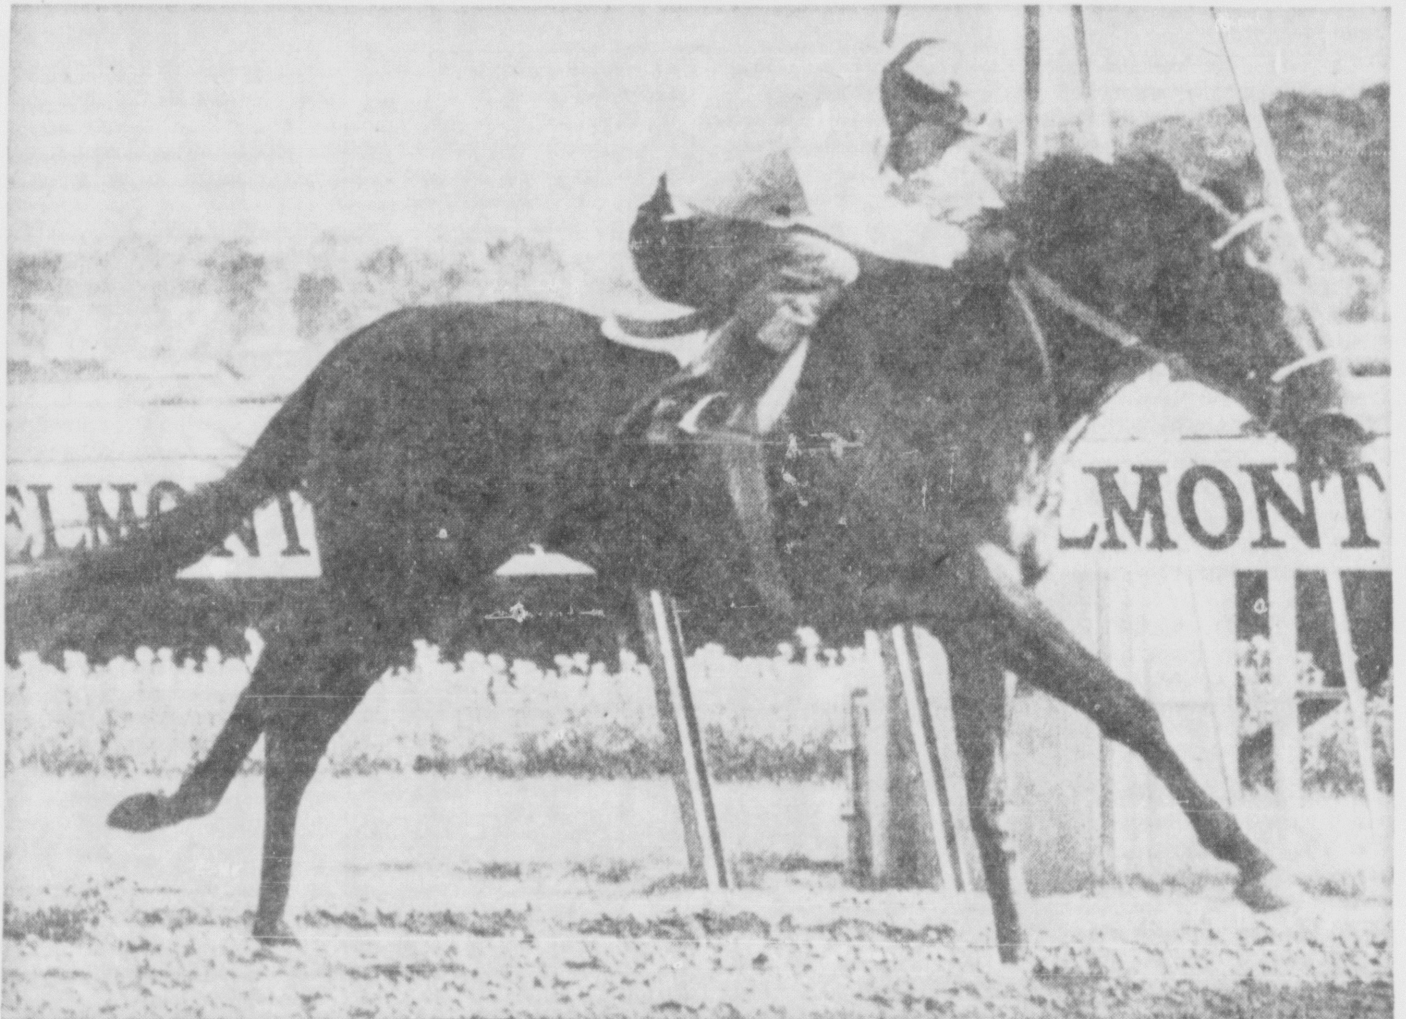

The 1926 race was stopped by rain at 400 miles with Frank Lockhart the winner. In 1950, a quit was called at 345 miles with the checkered flag going to Johnny Parsons.

Most important, propitious weather will send more than 200,000 picnic-spirited folk into this unique, 550-acre racing plant for some 3½ hours of gazing at a contest in which death can strike at any moment in the roaring 200 laps around the 2½-mile brick and asphalt course.

Some 53 persons—drivers, mechanics and spectators — have died at the track, the latest victim being a prime favorite to win

UCLA Cager Admits Being Approached

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA said Monday a star guard on its basketball team had been approached by a contact man for gamblers.

Athletic Director Wilbur Johns said the player, Ron Lawson, did not cooperate with gamblers but nonetheless failed to report the approach.

Lawson, Johns said, quit school Monday.

The sports world has been rocked recently by allegations that players for Eastern schools cooperated with big money gamblers. This was the first report of such activity in this area.

The investigation now has involved a total of 29 players and 18 schools.

Johns' statement said: "Ron Lawson was requested to appear before the New York Grand Jury last week in connection with its investigation into point shaving by college basketball players."

"Lawson appeared voluntarily. Since his return, he has told us he was approached by a contact man for the gamblers, but that he did not ever shave points in a game."

"Nevertheless, he did not report the approach to our coaches as all of our players are instructed to do, and consequently he has withdrawn from the university."

Lawson reportedly has returned home to Nashville, Tenn.

"It's a very unfortunate thing—very insidious," Johns said. There has been no indication that any other player has been approached by gambler, he added.

Lawson was one of the top three or four scorers on the UCLA squad.

E. Brewer had four hits to lead Burbicks while home runs were hit by Hasala, Golden and Good-ballet. Finely homered for the losers.

P. Berhar picked up the victory and struck out seven Chester batters. The Legion nine collected 10 hits.

A makeup game between Mill-iron's and Golden Star will be played today at 3:30 at Thompson Park field.

Blacks Push South Africa Race Strike

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Violence broke out Monday night after the first day of a strike called by nonwhites as a mass demonstration against the white government of this emerging South African republic.

The first outbreak came when Negroes in a segregated suburb township stoned Negro police who work for the government. White reporters on the scene had to dodge hurled rocks.

Heavy police patrols toured Negro settlements to defend home-bound Negroes who had defied the nationwide strike orders and gone to work while a large percentage of nonwhites stayed home.

The white government mobilized all its armed forces to cope with trouble expected in the approach to republic day in midweek.

Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd denounced the stay-at-home movement among Negroes, mulattoes and Indians as "a manifestation of the grabbing hand of communism over Africa." He rebuffed demands of nonwhites, who make up 13 million of South Africa's 16 million people, for the right to vote and a share in the government.

No city or industry or even a single service was totally paralyzed. But effects of the first day of the strike, called to continue until South Africa becomes a republic Wednesday, were noticeable from the shops of Johannesburg to the docks of Port Elizabeth.

The government-controlled radio declared the strike "a nationwide failure." But it admitted in the same broadcast that the work stoppage was 80 per cent effective in some vital sections of Johannesburg, the nation's largest city and commercial center.

White merchants had a problem even when their nonwhite help showed up, for nonwhite shoppers on whom they depend stayed away. This gave rise to fears that the strike might develop into a boycott of white shopkeepers as a weapon in the non-white campaign against the administration of Verwoerd.

Estimates of the strike's effectiveness were difficult to ascertain. Military and police chiefs kept repeating "everything is peaceful and normal," yet South African reporters estimated the stay-at-home in some Negro townships outside Johannesburg ranged to 75 per cent.

Colored Air For Auto Tires Probably Next

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Colored air for automobile tires is about the only thing missing in the gasoline advertising additive race, says an oil company official.

"We are making it increasingly hard on the operator to live up to our unrealistic assurances of perfection," he said of gasoline service stations.

Apples And Brazil Nuts Make Lovely Pair

Though the apple is not a native American fruit, the exploits of Johnny Appleseed link it firmly with the history of our continent and, more than any other fruit, the apple symbolizes the bounty of the American soil.

When combined with a South American specialty, the Brazil nut, the apple takes on particular charm.

The Brazil nut possesses a suavity that complements the forthright flavor of apples. It provides a good contrast to soft cooked apples and can be used as a topping.

The result of this mixture is a pleasant change from the standard apple filling.

French Apple Pie
2-3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon lemon juice
7 cups (2 pounds) thinly sliced,

pared, cored cooking apples
1 9-inch unbaked pie shell
Combine sugar, flour, salt, lemon rind and lemon juice. Place half of the apples in unbaked pie shell. Sprinkle with 1/2 of sugar mixture. Cover with remaining apples, then remaining sugar mixture. Sprinkle with Brazil Nut Streusel Topping.* Cover with aluminum foil or a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a hot oven (425 degree F.) 20 minutes; uncover; bake 20 minutes longer.

Yield: One 9-inch pie.
Brazil Nut Streusel Topping*
1 cup coarsely chopped Brazil nuts
1/2 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1-3 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup butter or margarine
Combine all ingredients; mix with fork.
6 red cooking apples

1 cup coarsely chopped Brazil nuts
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon each, cinnamon and cloves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup butter or margarine

Core apples almost through. Pare about 1-3 of the way down from stem end. Combine Brazil nuts, sugar, spices, salt and butter. Reserve 6 tablespoons of Brazil nut mixture; fill centers of apples with remaining mixture. Place apples in baking dish; add enough boiling water to cover bottom of dish. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degree F.) about 40 minutes, or until tender. Remove from oven. Sprinkle apples with reserved Brazil nut mixture. Place under broiler heat until lightly browned.
Yield: 6 servings.

(The following Memorial Day column first published in 1956, found its way into many family scrapbooks then. It is reprinted today as still timely.)

ANY CEMETERY, U.S.A. (AP) — Dialogue under the headstones: George, vintage, '18: Well, here it is another Memorial Day. Wonder who'll come?

Jim, vintage, '17: Who cares? Clem, vintage, '64: Not me. I'm not expecting visitors.

Charley vintage, '63: Me neither. It's been a long, long, long time for both of us. But restful. Joe, vintage, '43: I'd like to see my folks again.

Frank, vintage '50: I never had no folks—unless you can call an orphan home Daddy. But Edith, my girl, she said she'd never forget. But she has only come here once to see me.

Jim: I had folks once a long time ago, but I ran away young, and I wasn't the kind of kid they'd exactly want to remember. (An elderly woman came and knelt above George, prayed a few moments, then walked away, her head down.)

George: Stella! When I kissed her goodbye she said if I didn't come back she'd never marry again. That was what?—38 years ago. She looks so old and tired and lonely. Does she really think that's the way I wanted it? If I could only have left her a son. (Four people. An elderly couple and a young couple, came to Joe's headstone, decked it with flowers, and spoke of him lovingly as they sat down on the grass and opened a picnic lunch.)

Joe: Mom! Dad! And my kid brother! How big he is! The girl with him must be his wife. Imagine Harry being married. How fast things change—up there.

(A Delegation from the Sons of the Confederacy arrived, planted a waving flag (the Stars and Bars), by Clem's grave, listened to a brief speech then departed.)

Charley: I don't know what happened to the Sons of the Grand Army of the Republic this year. Johnny Reb, but your side remembered you.

Clem: Why shouldn't they, Yankee? Who do you think won the war? But it was a mighty terrible, short speech.

George, musingly: Wars and speeches. Speeches and wars. I wonder if we all had it to do over again, whether we'd—

Jim, testily: Had what do do over again? All I did was to get kicked by a mule in a training camp in Missouri. All my buddies thought it was funny, until I kneeled over. I never even had a chance to laugh.

George: I was crawling through some barbed wire near Chateau-Thierry when a Hun sniper—

Clem: I was crying for water in a Yankee prison. I had typh fever bad. And suddenly I was taken with a coughing fit and—Charley: I was thirsty, too. Reb, on that third day at Gettysburg when I lifted my head, and a bullet came and—

Joe: I wanted wings, and I was guiding a bomber over Germany when we ran into a flak burst, and—well I won my second pair.

Frank: I was in the Marines, just turned 20, when we landed in Korea. Didn't even have time to hate anybody. Five minutes after we started up the first hill, a mortar hit at my feet. Aw, who cares now? Where's Edith? She was only 18 when she promised she'd always—couldn't she come just this once?

Charley: Never mind, son. You'll get used to it. Anyway, maybe she misses you in ways you don't even know.

Frank: But Edith was the only girl I really ever knew, the only one I ever had a chance to know. (The family group above Joe rose to go. His mother, the last to rise, suddenly knelt down again, put her lips to his name in the stone, and burst into tears.) Joe: Mama! Mama! (The cemetery guard closed the gates behind the last departing visitor. Memorial Day was over. A meadowlark, hidden in the grass, sang a requiem to a silent camp.)

Dial System To Force Veteran Operator Out

CALIFON, N. J. (AP) — For 47 years, Mrs. Mary Dumbigue has been telling people, "Sorry, your time is up." But when the telephone exchange in this West Jersey community goes dial later this year, the time will be up for Mrs. Dumbigue.

Mary was just a youngster 58 years ago when the first Califon switchboard was installed in her family's dining room by the New Jersey Telephone Co. The board has remained in her home ever since, with Mary's sister, Mrs. Albert Hagaman, preceding her as the first telephone operator — for $5 a month.

"I remember when I could clean house between calls," Mrs. Dumbigue recalls. "If my father was on the board, he had time to cut the grass."

They had telephone numbers in the old days "but we didn't use them," Mrs. Dumbigue says. "They'd just call me and say, 'Mary, I want to talk to John,' or something like that. I knew everybody by their first name."

Akron Event Gets Palmer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Arnold Palmer will be back this summer for another try at the Firestone County Club course, which thwarted his efforts last year to become the first man to win professional golf's triple crown.

The Latrobe, Pa., golfer, who won "Player of the Year" honors in 1960, has filed his entry for the $50,000 American Golf Classic at Firestone Aug. 24-27.

Palmer won the Masters and U. S. Open tournaments last year, but failed to win the third jewel of golfdom's triple crown when he finished in a tie for seventh place in the PGA championship at the Firestone course.

The 1954 U.S. amateur champion has won 26 tournaments in his six years as a pro. No. 6 in that list was the 1957 Rubber City Open at Firestone, but that was before the course was revamped for the 1960 PGA.

Even Threat Didn't Bring In 418-1 Shot

MANILA (AP) — A man attempted to fix a horse race here with a submachinegun Sunday.

He came out on the San Lazaro Race Track carrying the weapon in a sack and announced to the jockeys that anyone who let his mount outrun a horse named Director would be shot down.

The warning seemed to have some effect. Director, a 418-1 long shot, took an early lead, but faltered and fell back into the pack. The man fled without shooting anyone.

Corak Plans To Remain In Burgess Post

Eli Corak, appointed a Beaver County commissioner Monday, said last night he will continue to serve as Midland burgess, but expects to resign Wednesday as Pennsylvania workmen's compensation referee.

Corak was appointed by Judges Morgan Sohn and Robert McCreary. He was sworn in at 1:30 p.m. Judge McCreary administered the oath of office and Judge Sohn administered the loyalty oath.

Commissioners will meet Wednesday morning to organize and elect a chairman. Corak will assume duties then. He must post bond and sign necessary certificates, he said.

Corak said he plans to remain as burgess since the office is compatible with that of county commissioner. He said Art Combs, a former commissioner, served two terms as commissioner while he was burgess of Aliquippa.

He said the Midland post only pays $800 a year and he is not expected to be there all the time. He said he enjoys serving as burgess.

He said the county commissioner job will be full time and he would resign the Midland post if at anytime it interferes. Corak fills the post vacated by Gordon Camp who was killed in a plane crash May 12. Camp was re-elected to the post in November 1959.

Auto Mishap Hurts Woman

An elderly Pleasant Heights woman apparently suffered a fracture of a small leg bone when she stepped into the path of a northbound car at Dresden Ave. and W. 6th St. Monday afternoon, police reported.

Police said Mrs. Mary Hanlon, 77, of 1279 Sunnyside Ave. suffered the fracture of a small bone in her left leg, but noted that she was able to stand on it.

Mrs. Hanlon was taken to City Hospital, where she was examined and released. No injuries were listed by the hospital.

According to police, Mrs. Hanlon stepped into the rear side of a car operated by James H. Young, 46, of Grimm's Bridge.

Young told officers he was headed north and went through the intersection on a green light, noticing the woman standing at the curb. As he passed her, Young said he stopped after hearing something hit the rear of his car, and believed someone had walked into the side.

Mrs. Hanlon told officers she was crossing Dresden Ave. from east to west but didn't see from which direction the auto came.

A city fireman's private car was damaged slightly in another collision Monday at River Rd. and Walnut St., police reported.

The right rear quarter panel on a 1956 sedan operated by Austin Conley Jr., 241 Haywood St., was damaged in the crash with a Good-year Tire & Rubber Co. truck operated by Warren A. Downing, 37, of 653 Walnut St., police said. Downing said he slowed down to turn north about 10:40 a. m. when he heard Conleys' brakes and cut back, but the two vehicles collided. Conley told police he thought the truck was going to continue straight ahead and started to pass as Downing made a left turn.

Valiant's got the perfect figure
to go with its beautiful face!

Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price for Model V-100 2-door Sedan, transportation, taxes (local and state) extra.

Expensive beauty? Everybody thought so. Then we revealed the figure. Turns out, Valiant doesn't play hard-to-get at all. In fact, prices start $100 lower than 1960 models. Most people just made an honest mistake. They took one look, they took one ride, or they heard a Valiant owner bragging. The upshot was that they thought Valiant cost more than ordinary compacts. We're here to tell you that nothing could be further from the truth. Look at that figure! Match it to the high trade-in allowances we're making. Makes a mighty pretty picture! Let us sketch it out for you... in person. Come in this week.

Blacks Push South Africa Race Strike

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Violence broke out Monday night after the first day of a strike called by nonwhites as a mass demonstration against the white government of this emerging South African republic.

The first outbreak came when Negroes in a segregated suburban township stoned Negro police who work for the government. White reporters on the scene had to dodge hurled rocks.

Heavy police patrols toured Negro settlements to defend home-bound Negroes who had defied the nationwide strike orders and gone to work while a large percentage of nonwhites stayed home.

The white government mobilized all its armed forces to cope with trouble expected in the approach to republic day in midweek.

Prime Minister Hendrik P. Verwoerd denounced the stay-at-home movement among Negroes, mulattoes and Indians as "a manifestation of the grabbing hand of communism over Africa." He rebuffed demands of nonwhites, who make up 13 million of South Africa's 16 million people, for the right to vote and a share in the government.

No city or industry or even a single service was totally paralyzed. But effects of the first day of the strike, called to continue until South Africa becomes a republic Wednesday, were noticeable from the shops of Johannesburg to the docks of Port Elizabeth.

The government-controlled radio declared the strike "a nationwide failure." But it admitted in the same broadcast that the work stoppage was 80 per cent effective in some vital sections of Johannesburg, the nation's largest city and commercial center.

White merchants had a problem even when their nonwhite help showed up, for nonwhite shoppers on whom they depend stayed away. This gave rise to fears that the strike might develop into a boycott of white shopkeepers as a weapon in the non-white campaign against the administration of Verwoerd.

Estimates of the strike's effectiveness were difficult to ascertain. Military and police chiefs kept repeating "everything is peaceful and normal," yet South African reporters estimated the stay-at-home in some Negro townships outside Johannesburg ranged to 75 per cent.

 to go with its beautiful face!

Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price for Model V-100 2-door Sedan, transportation, taxes (local and state) extra.

Expensive beauty? Everybody thought so. Then we revealed the figure. Turns out, Valiant doesn't play hard-to-get at all. In fact, prices start $100 lower than 1960 models. Most people just made an honest mistake. They took one look, they took one ride, or they heard a Valiant owner bragging. The upshot was that they thought Valiant cost more than ordinary compacts. We're here to tell you that nothing could be further from the truth. Look at that figure! Match it to the high trade-in allowances we're making. Makes a mighty pretty picture! Let us sketch it out for you... in person. Come in this week.

The low-price compact that looks and drives like twice the price... Valiant
